200,000 CHILDREN PERISH

PEKIN, Feb. 4.—More than 200,000 children are dead in the famine and pestilence ravaged sections of Anhui and Kiang-Su and 2,000,000 more are at the mercy of the combined death dealers, according to reports received to-day from Shanghai and other points in the south.

Demands that relief parties be sent into the death-ridden provinces to rescue American and other foreign missionaries have resulted in scores being sent, the letters of request declaring that the missionaries are needlessly sacrificing their lives.

Complaints were received by the government from friends and relatives of the missionaries in America and other foreign countries requesting that this action be taken.

REBELS ATTACK MEXICAN CITIES

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 4.—Two Mexican cities, Juarez, directly across the river from this city, and Tia Juana, just across the California line, are besieged by revolutionists.

General Orozco, commanding the revolutionists, who are advancing on Ciudad Juarez, has between 1,100 and 1,300 men. The exact numbers of the Federal troops in Juarez is not known, but they are greatly inferior in strength to the insurrectos and are short of ammunition.

Six rurales have been driven over the border from Mexico by insurgents. They were arrested to-day by United States troops. The latest reports received here from the camp of General Orozco indicate that the attack of Juarez will be made Sunday. A large force of federal troops are pushing north rapidly to reinforce the government soldiers at Juarez and are now said to be about fifty miles south of that city. They secured a large quantity of provisions and ammunition at Galena and immediately went northward.

Build Powder Trenches.

Seventy-five men worked all night digging mines about Juarez. These were filled with powder and can be touched off from Juarez when the insurrectos approach. There was no sleep in the city last night. Armed men hurried to and fro through the streets, and at times the silence was disturbed by the sound of desultory firing a few minutes from the city. It was said here to-day that sharp skirmishes had taken place, but the extent of the casualties was unknown. Both railroads have been cut off south of Juarez, and all wires are down, and Mexico City is unable to furnish relief.

One report current in Juarez to-day was that the Mexican government might ask the United States to send American troops into the city.

Uprising Is Growing.

The activity of the revolutionists in the extreme western section of Mexico is regarded as showing the seriousness and extent of the uprising against the Diaz regime. Two bodies of revolutionists, numbering in all about 300 men, well armed, and said to be under command of and American, are advancing on the city of Tia Juana in Lower California, and it is believed they will have no trouble in defeating the small force of regulars and rurales General Vega has sent to meet them.

To strictly enforce the neutrality laws twenty-two troops of United States cavalry will patrol the Mexican border line. Twelve troops have been ordered from the Presidio in San Francisco and in all 1,500 American soldiers will soon be on the line.

COACHES ROLL OVER PRECIPICE

EAST JAFFREY, N. H., Feb. 4.—Ethel Boynton of this place was killed to-day in a wreck on the Boston & Maine Railroad, three-quarters of a mile south of East Jaffrey, and a passenger and two trainmen were slightly injured.

Passenger train No. 641 on the Fitchburg division, which left Winchendon, Mass., at 6:43 a. m., with two passenger cars, was in an unexplained manner wrecked near here.

The two passenger coaches left the tracks and rolled down a steep embankment. The tender was off the rails after the accident, but the engine did not leave the track. Fortunately there were only two passengers on the train at the time the accident occurred.

One of them, Miss Boynton, was found dead in the wreckage, but the other escaped, as did the two trainmen.

FLOOD MAKES STREET CANALS

The steady downpour flooded Washington street, between Kneeland and Beech street, the water rising until it was flush with the sidewalks. If the rain had not stopped about noon, the sidewalks would have been flooded and the water have found its way into basements, causing heavy damage.

So deep was the water that the cars were diverted by way of Kneeland street, Harrison avenue and Essex street. Old-time Bostonians were reminded of the Stony Brook flood of twenty-five years ago, when people rowed boats in the streets of Roxbury.

The canal like condition of Washington street caused no end of inconvenience and diversion. Pedestrians had to go out of their way or wade almost to their knees in dirty cold water. Even the horses balked at it, and when their drivers forced them along they splashed so that the curious throng were spattered before they could get out of reach. Automobiles raced through, however, sending up a shower of spray and leaving swift eddies behind that swept the sidewalks like surf on a beach.

"Shooting the chutes has nothing on this," one chauffeur called out to the throng. To complete the picturesqueness of the scene, a knot of small boys began to launch ships from the sidewalk, as their fathers did on the frogpond in the Common.

Finally the police notified the Street Department, and a four-wheeled sweeper was sent to clear the street.

SCORES ON TRAIN STALLED A WEEK

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—A tale of privation, hunger and death is told by the passengers on Western Pacific train No. 7, which left Salt Lake City January 21, for San Francisco, and was hemmed in, front and rear, by thousands of tons of earth just outside the town of Virginia, Cal. Sixty-one first-class passengers and a large number of second-class passengers were housed in the narrow confine of a baggage car and a few coaches for a period of six days and nights.

HITCHCOCK REPLIES TO HIS CRITICS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—"The Postmaster-General wishes it understood that it is his wish to require from railway mail men only a fair day's work, and he does not require that any hardship be imposed upon clerks, or that the service should be impaired." This is the answer of Frank W. Hitchcock to-day to criticism heaped upon his department by 15,000 clerks and their sympathizers, and those who believe "efficiency is sacrificed for economy."

HOLD CHELSEA MAN ON ARSON CHARGE

Rubin Ogus, thirty-nine, is held by the Chelsea police charged with arson. Ogus is the proprietor of a small store at No. 73 Everett avenue. A fire broke out there early yesterday and was extinguished by members of Engine 5, without an alarm.

TAFT TO ADVOCATE RECIPROCITY ON TRIP

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—President Taft to-day announced that he intends to advocate Canadian reciprocity in a series of speeches to be made on his Western trip, including one at the Lincoln's birthday dinner at Springfield, Ill., February 11.

PERSIAN MINISTER OF FINANCE SLAIN

TEHERAN, Feb. 4.—Persi Sani Ed Dowleh, Minister of Finance, was assassinated by two Armenians to-day. He was shot to death in the street.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—The joint legislative lacked a quorum to-day for the sixteenth ballot for United States Senator.

GAETANO DELGAIZO, NORTH END VICTIM OF GAS POISONING

ONE DEAD, TWO DYING FROM GAS

One man dead and a man and woman dying was the tragic result at No. 294 Hanover street to-day of inexperience in the use of the modern gasjet.

THE DEAD—Mel Galzo Gaetano, fifty-three years, barber, arrived here last Wednesday from Italy to join his son and daughter Theodore M. and Marie Gaetano. On the night of his arrival his son tried to show him how to use a gas jet. Found dead from escaping gas.

THE DYING—Florinto Clamillo, fifty-one years, barber, father-in-law of Theodore M. Gaetano; taken to City Hospital, suffering from asphyxiation, and Caroline Clamillo, wife of Florinto fifty years; taken to City Hospital, suffering from asphyxiation, and Caroline Clamillo, wife of Florinto, fifty years; taken to City Hospital suffering from asphyxiation.

Nine years ago Mel Galzo Gaetano, a barber in Italy, sent his son Theodore M. and his daughter, Marie, to this country. Theodore became a barber and married a daughter of Florinto Caemillo, a barber. His wife died. Then his father-in-law and mother-in-law came to live with Theodore and his sister Marie in the top floor tenement at No. 294 Hanover street.

Mother Died in Italy.

Theodore and Marie's mother died in Italy. Then the young people persuaded the father, Mel Galzo Gaetano, to come to this country and live with them. The father arrived here last Wednesday and was welcomed at the Hanover street tenement. Wednesday night Theodore said to his father:

"I want to show you the gas jets and how we turn the gas on and off."

The father replied with some resentment that his son should undertake to instruct him:

"Oh, we have those in Italy now. I know all about them. You needn't show me."

The son, fearing to hurt his father's feelings, and thinking the elder knew of what he was talking, abandoned the attempted lesson. Arrangements were made for the father to secure work here as a barber. He met the Caemillos, his son's parents-in-law, and was happy in his new home.

Last night the occupants of the top floor retired as usual. At 6:30 to-day Alphonse Clamillo, sixteen-year-old son of Florinto, found his father unconscious in the hallway, just outside the door of the room in which Florinto and his wife slept. Florinto was discolored in the face. The son could not rouse him.

Alphonse ran into the bedroom. He found his mother, Caroline Clamillo unconscious. He smelled gas, but not enough, as he thought at first, to suffocate his parents. He roused his brother-in-law, Theodore M. Gaetano. The two young men went into Mel Galzo Gaetano's room. Theodore found his father lifeless in bed. Gas was flowing from one opened jet.

Chance for Recovery.

It was apparent that the elder Gaetano had turned the gas on when he thought he was turning it off. He had gone quickly to sleep and was asphyxiated as the volume of escaping gas increased.

Dr. Louis Morrell, who lives on the ground floor, was called. He saw that the elder Gaetano was dead, but that Mr. and Mrs. Clamillo had a chance for life. He ordered them to the City Hospital, where it was said later that they were on the "dangerous" list and would probably not recover.

Gas did not penetrate any of the other tenements in the five-floor block. The Gaetano tenement being on the top floor was partly responsible for this. But the alarm given when the news was known roused the entire building and the immediate neighborhood.

SPEAKER CENSURED BY WHITE

Representative Norman H. White to-day issued a statement in which he characterized Speaker Walker's efforts in behalf of Governor Foss's resolve for authority to employ experts and make a thorough investigation of all State departments as "unfair and ridiculous," and declares that the Speaker is prompted by a desire to make the Governor responsible for the financial condition of the State.

"I fail to see," says Mr. White "how Speaker Walker can justify his efforts to make the Governor responsible for the State taxes and expenditures, when he knows perfectly well that the Governor has no power whatsoever to spend one cent of the State's money." Mr. White also attacks the Walker bill passed by last year's Legislature providing for the supervision by the Governor and Council of expenditures and other financial operations of the State, as inadequte. This is the bill under which Governor Foss asked for the authority to hire expert help and investigate.

Representative White's statement follows:

Defends His Attitude.

"A good deal of comment has been made throughout the State on my stand in the matter of investigating State institutions, boards and commissions. I want it thoroughly understood that I am not opposed to any kind of investigation by anyone, but I think it is very unwise not to allow the appropriating power under the constitution to have the same power of investigating that any other body or person may obtain.

"It is evident that the Walker bill of last year is inadequate, otherwise Governor Foss would not have asked for further powers of investigation.

"Realizing this situation Speaker Walker took the floor to force through an amendment in the form of a resolve in accordance with Governor Foss's recommendations. It is quite evident, however, that this resolve is not satisfactory, and that the Ways and Means Committee on the part of the Senate and the Ways and Means Committee on the part of the House ought to have the power to make investigations of any State institutions, boards or commissions, so far as finances are concerned. It is absurd on its face to turn over this power to make investigation and recommendation to appropriate money to the Governor, when the latter has no power whatsoever in the making of such appropriations. The Legislature is, of course, the only appropriating power in the Commonwealth. Contrary to Speaker Walker's views, it is perfectly clear to my mind that the appropriating power should have the investigating power, and it is absurd to say that the Governor must be held responsible for State appropriations when the Legislature makes them, and votes on them and has the sole power so to do.

"Make Governor Responsible."

"Mr. Walker would make the Governor responsible for the financial condition of the State. This is unfair and ridiculous. Governor Foss is a Democrat, and the Legislature is Republican in majority; the Legislature is alone the appropriating power, why then should Mr. Walker expect to make the Governor responsible for the State taxes and the State expenditures when he knows perfectly well that the Governor has no power whatsoever, to spend one cent of the State's money. I would like to have Mr. Walker explain this to the people of the State.

"His argument that the Governor should be made responsible for the expenditure of State money is absolutely absurd and ridiculous. The Governor may veto any expenditure he wishes, but that is all he can do, and even that may not prevent the expenditure, for the Legislature may pass the appropriation over his veto. Every member of the Legislature is responsible to his constituents for the tax levy—that is what the members are sent there for—and the absurdity of trying to 'put it up to the Governor,' whether he be Democrat or Republican, is not only unfair to the latter, but is not good policy for the State.

"I want to ask any business man if he would like to be made responsible for the expenses of any great business concern if he could not even vote at a directors' meeting, and had only the power to recommend what he thought might be good, and had no other power. Of course, Mr. Walker is not a business man, and his attempt to make the Governor responsible is, I think, unsound.

"I quite agree that it is well for the Governor to outline his views in the matter of State expenditures, and that he should have all the power he desires for purposes of investigation, but, on the other hand, I think it good policy that the appropriating body should have just as much opportunity to investigate as the Governor may have, for it is the Legislature that is responsible, and not the Governor, regardless of what Mr. Walker may think in the matter.

"The absurdity of saying that the Governor ought to be responsible for the action of the Legislature is prima facie evidence of weakness, because anybody knows that, in the last analysis, the Legislature may pass anything it chooses over the Governor's veto. It is a popular theory to say 'The Governor ought to be responsible for the expenditures of the State.'

Theory Can't Hold Water.

"This theory, however, can never hold water. The Legislature, not the executive, is responsible to the people. Any other theory is not justice to the Governor, who never was elected to make law or make laws involving appropriations. The whole talk to the contrary is talk, and talk only.

"Mr. Walker says: 'It is now up to the Governor.' This is also unfair. How can an appropriation be 'Up to the Governor' when he has no power to make laws to appropriate?

"Mr. Walker again says: 'He must necessarily exercise control and be responsible for increase in expenditures.' The Governor has not even a vote on any bill which may increase or decrease expenditures.

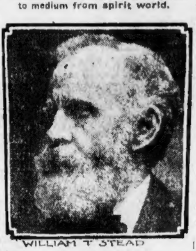
"Mr. Walker says: 'The Governor cannot evade the responsibility.' I say in reply he cannot have the responsibility under the Constitution, he never has had, and never ought to have, and if he ever does have, a one-man power in our State expenses will be created. This on its face would be dangerous and ill-advised. I do not believe there is an institution or a commission in the State but what will agree with me. Anyone to hear Mr. Walker in the last year or two would think there was no responsibility for our expenditures. This I most emphatically deny."

SPIRIT TALK REPORTED BY MEDIUM TO STEAD

"All sensationalism with regard to death tends to imprint false thoughts upon the minds of men. There is no death; all is life; all is freedom."---Spirit message from Mrs. Eddy, quoted by W. T. Stead.

MRS MARY BAKER EDDY

Christian Science leader who spoke to medium from spirit world.



WILLIAM T STEAD

Famous journalist who received message from Mrs. Eddy.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—In view of an article published in the New York AMERICAN in which Mrs. Stetson stated that she believed Mrs. Eddy will come back from the tomb it may interest your readers to hear of a curious experience of mine which occurred the day before Mrs. Stetson's letter appeared. I was not thinking of Mrs. Eddy when I took my seat in a small circle of psychic students which meets weekly to peer into the dim mysteries of the world beyond the grave.

The head of the class is a trained occultist who is clairvoyant and clairaudient. He does not go into [illegible], but listens for messages which he appears to hear from the invisible. Sometimes he sees a form clairvoyantly, but more frequently he hears a voice which apparently reaches him by some long distance telephone operated by occult means. Sometimes these messages purport to come from friends who are still on earth; at other times they claim to come from the so-called dead.

As a rule the clairaudient hears a far-away voice speaking just as if he were listening to the utterances emanating from the mouthpiece of a telephone. He alone hears the spoken words, but the invisible one who speaks can hear and constantly replies to observations made by members of the circles.

The name of the speaker is not given until the message is completed.

We had been sitting some half hour when the clairvoyant began to repeat a message, no word of which we could hear any more than we could have heard it with his ear to the receiver of a telephone and he had been repeating messages transmitted in the ordinary way.

"I hear," he said, "a voice from some great distance. The speaker is not here, but the words come to me thus:

> "What a foolish error they are making to call attention to that shell which I so recently left. This will do the movement much harm. All sensationalism with regard to death tends to imprint false thoughts upon the minds of men. There is no death; all is life; all is freedom. I protest against the action of my board."

Then the message, which the clairvoyant said was delivered in a vehement tone, ceased momentarily, then it began again:

> "I know not who now is voicing my sentiments, but I wish my people to take note of what I say. My body has been carefully watched, but they are drawing far too much attention to it. I'm still tied very closely to it. That does not matter so much; what I deplore is the effect which all this concentration of attention on my body will have in giving more power to death, an idea which is false. Let them turn their thoughts rather to my doctrine which is taught in my book."

As the message obviously purported to come from Mrs. Eddy, one of the sitters ventured to ask whether Mrs. Eddy has changed her opinion on the subject of Spiritualism, and informed her that her communication was being received at a spiritualistic seance. The voice replied:

> "I am against ordinary spiritualism. I speak as strongly as ever against the thought forms which are to be found at spiritualist seances."

When asked to prove her identity the voice replied:

> "I am myself. You cannot prove that to mortal mind. The realm of personality and mortal minds is a delusion and a snare. Farewell."

This, so far as I know, is the first time anyone purporting to be Mrs. Eddy has sent a message to any circle in this country. None of the sitters was a Christian Scientist. Everyone of us would willingly have exchanged all alleged views of Mrs. Eddy for one authentic proof of her identity. To my mind the message is therefore unauthenticated, and my theory is that Mrs. Eddy's thoughts were overheard rather than deliberately transmitted.

William T. Stead is the correspondent in London for the Hearst newspapers. He is the dean of the English newspaper writers. His name is a household word in Great Britain. He is on familiar terms with all the crowned heads of Europe, and the great men and women of the old world. His prominence gives added interest to the extraordinary cablegram to the AMERICAN.

Reported Message Cause of Much Comment in the Church

The remarkable message, believed to be from Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, received at a spiritualistic seance in London, which was attended by William T. Stead, the noted writer, caused much comment among members of the Christian Science Church in Boston and among spiritualists when it was read in the AMERICAN.

BOOK AGENT IS SENT TO JAIL

Roy L. Van Worner of New York, was arraigned before Judge Bennett in Police Court charged with the theft of $5,000 from Elliot C. Lee, a retired banker, living in Brookline.

Van Worner was represented by an attorney, who asked for a continuance until Tuesday. He was held in $7,500 bail which he was unable to furnish, and was sent to jail.

The charge against Van Worner is that he and another man called on Mr. Lee at his home. They told him they had a chance to buy de luxe editions of Dickens and Scott in New York for $5,000 which they could sell for $29,000. They offered to split the $24,000 profit with him if he would put up the $5,000. He forwarded the $5,000 to them in New York. In a short time he received the books. He says they may be worth $400.

Then Lee received a telegram from Van Worden saying that he would call on him at his home with another opportunity for him to make $25,000 at an output of $6,000. Lee notified the police, and Inspector Angell and Sergeant Rothford greeted Van Worner when he called in Brookline. The police are now searching for his accomplice.

Mrs. Eddy Has a Talk From the Other World

Mrs. Eddy's Words as Given to Stead

I know not who is now voicing my sentiments, ut I wish my people to take note ow what I sap. My body has beeh carefully watched, but they are drawing far too much attention to it. I'm still tied very closely to it. That does not matter so much; what I deplore is the effect which all this concentration of attention on my bodp will have in giving more vower to death an idea which is false. Let them turn their thoughts rather to mp doctrine which is taught in my book—From message delivered by medium as having come from Mary Baker Eddy.

clared that the message was not genuine. They do not believe in messages from the spirit realm. Some of the leaders in the church denounced the reported message as "all rot."

Boston Spiritualists were divided on the message, some believing that it was a true one from Mrs. Eddy and others doubting it. The Rev. Frederick A. Wiggin, one of the leaders among the spiritualists, says that even if the message is true that it is of no account to science because it tells nothing new.

The views of leading Christian Scientists and Spiritualists follow:

"All Rot" Says Farlow.

"It's all rot," said Alfred Farlow, head of the publicity department of the Christian Science Church, to the AMERICAN to-day. "You know we don't believe in that spiritualist stuff. There is always a lot of that stuff comes out when anybody dies, especially if he or she is at all prominent.

"It is the harvest time for the medium, but our church does not believe in it at all. I don't believe in it and I say that it's not true. It's all rot. That's all I can say about it, for it is absurd."

John V. Dittemore, one of the directors of the Christian Science Church, said:

"That alleged communication from Mrs. Eddy is all foolishness. I decline to comment upon anything of this character. It is nothing more than a dream."

Archibald McLellan, a director of the Christian Science Church, said:

"I am not at all interested in the purported spirit message. If it is deemed necessary Mr. Farlow will make a statement about it."

The Rev. Frederick A. Wiggin, pastor of the Unity Church of Boston and one of the foremost lecturers on phychic subjects in New England, said:

Calls It Unimportant.

"I can see no reason why this message should not have come from Mrs. Eddy. Yet anybody at all familiar with Mrs. Eddy and her writings could have written the message.

"But even if the message is from Mrs. Eddy's spirit, what of it? It is not important; she has said nothing new. The message is only that which she taught while in this life, that which is to be found in her books. It may be a genuine message, but it is of no value.

"There are many people who are no wiser out of the body than they were in it, she may be one of them, at any rate the message alleged to come from her is not at all new. There is indeed nothing in the message to warrant the psychic in saying it is from Mrs. Eddy, except the wording of it, and that is open to question.

"There is absolutely nothing there that would be a help to science. If Mrs. Eddy had given some light—something new—it would be acceptable, but there is nothing new in the message."

H. L. Berry, of No. 56 Pleasant street, Malden, a leader among the spiritualistic thinkers in Greater Boston, believes that the message is probably genuine.

Says It Rings True.

"I am exceedingly glad to have seen this," he said. "The message rings true, and I believe that so far as we may be certain of anything we may believe the message genuine. There is no way of proving it, one way or another, of course. Mrs. Eddy herself says this in the words of the message.

"These things can never be proved except by occult methods. They are not demonstrable to science. In testing any words received in this way there are a thousand possibilities to be considered. Here, it seems to me, every indication points to the genuineness of the message. It rings true. That is a strong point in its favor.

"It is not in accordance with the views of the majority of spiritualists. But it does express the conclusions that have been reached by those who are studying the higher philosophy or spiritualism. I should say that the chances are more than even in favor of that message being genuine."

Miss Annie Banks Scott of No. 44 Ruggles street, Roxbury, when she heard of the spirit message received by the London psychic believed to have come from Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, immediately communicated with the AMERICAN, expressing it as her opinion that this message might in all truth have come from the founder of the Christian Science faith, and that the distance the message came had nothing to do with its truth. She said:

Readings for Fifty Cents.

"The Spiritualists of this city claim that Mrs. Eddy came from them, for years ago before she founded the Christian Science faith she gave readings at fifty cents a head, and we believe she understood the spirit return thoroughly.

"The fact that the message came from abroad, rather than to some medium here, would prove nothing, for if there was a brain in London sensitive enough to receive the message it would have been received by that brain. It might have come to me or to any one else whose brain was sensitive enough to receive it.

"It is like a person in this life having a message to deliver. If that person is abroad, then it sends the message from abroad, and it cares not whether the messenger be a common, ordinary messenger boy or some person high in the social scale, so long as the message is delivered.

"We believe that Mrs. Eddy was one of us, that she believed in Spiritualism. The mere fact that she founded a new cult, possibly for financial gain, has nothing to do with her views on the subject of Spiritualism, and although her doctrines seemed to be wholly against Spiritualism, we believe that she still understood the spirit return.

"I don't believe any conscientious woman would like her friends to believe that she could not communicate from the spirit life, if she believed it herself. I believe that this message is not only possibly but probably true."

Believes Message True.

Mrs. W. Brockway of No. 179 Massachusetts avenue, who holds spiritualistic meetings each Sunday evening in the League of Honor Hall at No. 200 Huntington avenue, reading the AMERICAN'S statement by Mr. Stead, declared she believed that the message was genuine and sees in it confirmation of the claim of the Spiritualists.

"From the tone in which I receive this message," she said, "I can see in it a demonstration of the truth of Spiritualism. It demonstrates the truth of eternal life and shows that Spiritualism is an abstract truth that will live forever. Any scientific man, after considering the facts surrounding the receipt of this message, must acknowledge that it is a convincing demonstration of our claims. A spirit is speaking through another mortal.

"I feel that Mrs. Eddy spoke this word to keep her Church together. She would perhaps have been slow to admit the fundamental truths of Spiritualism, even though she herself was a medium for some years, except for her need for a means of communication with the world. I have had thirty years' experience in the Spiritualistic field, and to my mind, this demonstration is convincing beyond a doubt. The possibility of a fraud is not to be considered if the medium who transmitted the message is a clairvoyant of standing and recognized as reputable.

Spiritualistic Triumph.

"But aside from the importance of the sender this message is not important. Messages are received every day from persons whom people call dead—and these messages are just as wonderful, and just as convincing of the truth of our teachings, as this word from Mrs. Eddy. I feel that this message is genuine and that it is a message to be heeded by her church, but I feel too that it is a triumph for the Spiritualists."

Adam H. Dickey, one of the board of the Christian Science Church, said after reading Mr. Stead's statement:

"I place no authenticity in the message reported as coming from Mrs. Eddy by the London psychic. Mrs. Eddy always taught the impossibility of communication of this character coming from those who have departed this life with those who remain in the present body. I don't believe in psychic phenomena. It is contrary to the teachings of Mrs. Eddy."

"Probable," Says Mrs. Young.

Mrs. Hattie A. Young of No. 24 Carver street, a medium who describes herself as a "religious Spiritualist," said after reading the Stead article in the AMERICAN:

"I see no reason why that should not be true. I believe it is entirely probable Mrs. Eddy for many years prior to her taking up Christian Science work was a working medium. She took up Christian Science only after she had been lifted out of the ordinary class of Spiritualists by study with a doctor.

"The leaders of the Christian Science Church may say Spiritualism is not one of the tenets of the sect, but, for all that, Mrs. Eddy was a Spiritualist. Mrs. Stetson even now is apparently trying to put the Christian Science Church back on a spiritualistic basis. This psychic in London probably had the power to get Mrs. Eddy's spirit."

BACK TO THE R. H. WHITE CO.

Jas. A. Houston With Firm Thirty Years.

HIS RETURN MARKS AN EPOCH IN BUSINESS OF CITY.

Event to Be Celebrated With Big Sale.

Probably the most important announcement of the new year to Boston business interests, but more especially to the great buying public, is that James A. Houston has decided to return to active business life and connect himself once more with the R. H. White Company, the firm with which he was associated for 30 years and which he helped build up and develop to its present splendid proportions.

He was one of the first men to sense the keen desires of the New England shopping public and to satisfy those desires in every way in a great department store. He was one of the first to see the necessity for efficient, intelligent service in a great store and for those conveniences and utilities which all women appreciate. The methods of organization were not only abreast of the times, but always a little ahead under Mr. Houston.

And this was only natural and logical, for he, in the largest possible sense, grew up with the business. He was part and parcel of the White store ever since he was 12 years of age. In fact both he and Mr. White as boys commenced together to learn the dry goods business selling prints at the munificent salary of $3 per week. During his 30 years of experience he learned to know every want and requirement of the New England shopping people. He knew what the finest tastes required and he thoroughly understood the wants of the people at large—the great public which makes the success of any large business enterprise which caters in a general way to the wants of the public.

After leaving the R. H. White Company, some years ago, Mr. Houston developed a splendid business of his own along somewhat similar lines and retired, satisfied with his success. But such men who have a thorough knowledge of the business are scarce, so Mr. Houston has been induced to return to the scenes of his greatest triumphs in the mercantile world—the R. H. White Company.

And to fittingly celebrate this event the R. H. White Company proposes to hold a sale on Monday that shall long be remembered by New England shoppers.

All of the resources of the firm have been directed toward the making of this sale a phenomenal success. The buyers have been busy securing merchandise the world over and the great stock has been purchased on such favorable terms that it will result in the most surprising bargains that Boston or New England has ever seen. It will include about everything that a first-class department store carries, and next Monday—the opening day—promises to be the biggest sale of goods ever known in the R. H. White Company's store. ***

Guard King George from Threat of Suffragettes.

LONDON—Threats from the militant suffragettes that they will mob King George on Monday if in his speech opening Parliament he does not indicate a wish that the franchise be granted to women, resulted in extraordinary police activity to-day. The building of Parliament will be surrounded by the largest number of police that has ever been called out at the opening of Parliament. The authorities fear that the declarations of the women that they will use greater violence than they have ever manifested heretofore will be carried out. In fact fear over the suffragette situation is causing the authorities as much worry as the anarchists.

Test Sanity of Abdul Hamid.

CONSTANTINOPLE—Physicians will be sent to Salonica from this city to inquire into the sanity of Abdul Hamid, former ruler of Turkey, as a result of dispatches from there, saying he has killed two of his wives. If he is found incurably insane he will be removed to a madhouse. The open charge is made here that he was driven to insanity by the brutality of the guards stationed around him by the Young Turks when he was exiled.

Flies 39 Miles in 32 Minutes.

PARIS—Say, an aviator, competing for the Aerial League prize for the aviator flying sixty kilometers over a circuit course before February 4, covered sixty three kilometers in thirty two minutes. He used a biplane. Sixty-three kilometers is approximately 39.27 miles. Say's flight was at the rate of 1.23 miles a minute, or 73.8 miles an hour. His feat is probably a record for so great a distance on a circular course.

CALCUTTA—In the presence of the British Viceroy, Sir Charles H. Hardine, and the most eminent scholars of the Orient, the degree of LL. D., was conferred upon Crown Prince Eitel Frederick of Germany by the University of Calcutta to-day. The Crown Prince is one of the youngest members of the royalty ever to receive this honor.

Weyler and Canalejas Confer.

WIFE HAD TOO MANY COUSINS

Too many cousins and other male relatives all young and good-looking and assiduous in their attentions to his wife, caused Dr. Edward F. Gleason, a well-known Back Bay physician, to seek a divorce, which has just been granted him in the Superior Court.

The doctor testified he was continually returning to his home to find his attractive young wife entertaining. Although he had understood before his marriage that she was practically bereft of all relatives, her callers were always introduced, now as brothers, now as cousins and again as just relatives.

The sudden appearance of so many relatives caused the doctor to wonder if the end had come. To find out he hired a detective, whose reports resulted in divorce papers being filed.

The Gleasons were married in February, 1904. Their married life was without a jar until they went to a beach to spend the Summer. The first unpleasantness arose from Mrs. Gleason's fondness for moonlight rides in motor boats with young men.

Dr. Gleason is prominent in trap shooting circles. In 1907 he won the championship trap shoot of America. He has won many contests all over the country. Mrs. Gleason was usually his companion on these shooting match trips.

WINTHROP AMES QUITS NEW THEATRE BOARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Followers of the drama discussed with interest to-day the possible effects upon the policies and progress of the New Theatre likely to result from the resignation of Winthrop Ames as director of the theatre and of Lee Shubert as its business manager, reported late last night. The resignations, it was stated, are to take effect at the end of the present season, but the directors have not yet acted upon them. While it is considered certain that the founders will ask Mr. Ames to reconsider his determination to retire from the post which he had held since the inception of the New theatre enterprise, two years ago, the director has given no evidence of intention to alter his decision.

PEABODY TOO ILL TO SEE FIANCEE

BALTIMORE, Feb. 3.—George Lee Peabody, Boston banker, is critically ill as a result of a third operation by Dr. Harvey Cushing of Johns Hopkins University Hospital, for a growth on the brain. Mr. Peabody entered the hospital January 11, suffering as the result of a polo injury last Summer. Miss Deacon, the fiancee of Peabody, who has been in Baltimore since Saturday, called after the operation, but owing to the serious condition of the patient, she was unable to see him. General Francis Peabody, Jr., a brother, and Mrs. John Lawrence, a sister, also are here.

ACCUSE MAN OF ATTACKING GIRLS

NORTH ABINGTON, Feb. 4.—A man giving the name of Abraham Magiain is held here on the charge of attacking two young women. Sunday evening, it is alleged, he waylaid Miss Agnes Doherty, seventeen years old. Miss Mamie Evans was later accosted by a man near the North Abington railroad station. He seized her, but she escaped after a struggle.

SHERIFF SHOT AND KILLED BY NEGRO

WILSON, N. C., Feb. 4.—Deputy Sheriff George Munford was killed and Chief of Police A. O. Glover was probably fatally wounded by a negro desperado. The officers were attempting to arrest the negro, on advices from Dunn, where he broke into a store.

POKER PLAYERS GO TO A CELL

John Finnerty and John Baker, who is also known as John Purcell, were fined $64 each by Judge Bennett in the Municipal Court, and, appealing, were committed to Charles Street Jail in default of $300 bail. This was the result of a card game at the Langham Hotel, in which they and John Lyall of the "Follies of 1910" company took part.

They were convicted under a law seldom enforced in Boston. It is Section 1 of Chapter 214, Revised Laws of Massachusetts, which reads:

> Whosoever is convicted of winning at one time, or sitting, by gaming or betting on the sides or hands of those gaming, money or goods to the value of $5, and of receiving the same or security thereof, shall forfeit double the value of such money or goods.

Lyall complained that the prisoners got $32 out of him at a card game at the Langham. They began by playing pitch and ended with a hand at poker. Lyall held four aces, but Finnerty had a straight flush and took the pot.

TO YOU WHO ARE SICK
I Make The Fairest Offer That I Know

Let me say right at the start that no money is asked or expected. I make this remarkable offer of my own free will and accord. I am financially able to do so. It is my way—the way I have chosen for doing good—The way I have thought out by which I can best send help and comfort, health and strength out into this world of so much sickness and suffering.

It is for you to accept or refuse as you like.

For you to choose—whether your trouble, with all its pain, danger, fear and uncertainty, shall continue—or whether it shall be taken away. But in the choosing, remember this—health was God's most precious gift to you, and it is as much your duty to regain and keep it as to guard and protect your life.

Directing Specialist Clearwater
Who makes this generous offer.

What is my offer? You ask. Listen!—In my thirty years' experience in medicine I have learned many strange things. For one thing, I've learned that Heart Disease kills more people every day than anything else on earth. I've also learned that Heart Disease hardly ever exists alone—by itself—That other organs—Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys, Liver, Lungs, Sexual Organs, etc., are almost always affected, too. Why?—Think for a minute and you'll answer the question yourself—It's because the Heart is the vital organ of the body—because it governs all the other organs, supplies EVERY organ—every Nerve, muscle and tissue with blood and life and power to do their work.

Stop the Heart's beat and death strikes instantly—you know that. And let the Heart get weak or wrong in any way and the whole system—the whole body, from Brain to tiniest blood vessel—suffers, too.

But, you say, I haven't any Heart trouble. My Heart is all right. Lots of people think and say the self-same thing. Why, only last week I had a pitiful, tear-stained letter from a little eleven-year-old girl out in Massachusetts, telling me how her mother fell dead the week before—with the baby in her arms! Now this woman thought her Heart was all right. She would not believe me—even refused to take the treatment or heed the warning, and the good advice that I had sent her free!

Six people in every ten have Heart trouble, though many of them do not know it. Thirty thousand victims die of it in America every year. Think of it. And so I say, unless you are sure, unless you KNOW, for goodness' sake don't take any more chances—stop a bit right here and find out for a certainty just where you stand.

THE SYMPTOMS OF HEART DISEASE

Are very plain when once they are known and understood. The great trouble is that most people don't know what the symptoms are—don't know what they mean when they have them. Another thing: A great many people are misled and deceived into thinking their trouble is something else. Thousands—perhaps you among them—are to-day doctoring the Stomach, Kidneys, Liver, Nerves or Sexual organs for some supposed trouble, when all the time it's the Heart that's causing it all. In other words, you may be treating the symptoms and not the disease itself.

Following are the most common signs—the really sure symptoms of Heart Disease. Go over them carefully one by one and answer yes or no to each. That will tell the story.

Do you tire easily?
Do you have headaches?
Does your Heart flutter?
Does it ever skip beats?
Does your Heart palpitate?
Do you start in your sleep?
Are you short of your breath?
Do you feel "weak and run down"?
Do you have numb or dizzy spells?
Do you have weak, sinking spells?
Are you Nervous and irritable?
Do your feet, legs or ankles swell?
Does your Stomach have an "all gone" feeling?
Have you pain in Heart, side or shoulder blade?

Of course no case has all—some of the very worst only a few. Therefore if you find that even one or two of them are YOUR symptoms, you should act at once, for you may be in grave danger. You know Heart Disease don't wait. It comes like a thief, develops quickly and strikes without warning.

AND HERE IS MY OFFER.

If you have any of these symptoms, if you have reason to think that you have even the slightest Heart trouble or weakness, write me now. I will send you free treatment and advice.

Or, again, if you have known for some time that you have Heart trouble or weakness, write me—even though your case is chronic, deep-seated and has resisted treatment. Even though you may have been told that you cannot be cured—I urge you all the more strongly to write at once.—It is in just such stubborn "incurable" cases we have made the most remarkable cures.

The very day I hear from you, I will send you by mail, post-paid, and securely sealed—for your case; a letter of advice explaining your whole case fully. Also a Medical Book that in plain words and with clear pictures tells all about your trouble. Explains about your Heart—what it does—how it works, and its relation to all the rest of your body. The book is valuable, do not lose sight of this part of my offer—many people—among them several physicians—say it's the best book of its kind ever written.

A REGULAR FULL FREE TREATMENT

Remember, it is all free—the Book—the Letter of Advice, the full Course of Treatment. There are no "strings" to this offer. Neither is it a C. O. D. scheme or anything of the kind. I ask for no money. I send you no medicine expecting you to pay later. You bind yourself in no way. It is nothing but a genuine, generous, honest, free offer of help to the sick. I am making this same offer in some of the best papers in America besides the Boston American, because it seems to me to be the best way to quickly get advice and help—this certain, effective treatment—into the hands of every sufferer—everywhere.

To the skeptical—the doubters—the unbelievers—to those who think Heart trouble can't be cured—to those who forget that science is advancing, I say for your own good—yes, in simple fairness to yourself—Don't give up—Don't fail to get our advice and test our methods and treatment. It has cured—I don't mean just helped—but cured thousands of cases, many of which had been pronounced hopeless.

I am particularly anxious to hear from those who aren't quite sure just what their trouble is—from those who are doctoring the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Nerves, etc., but get little or no better. In nine out of ten such cases the real trouble is with the Heart. Anyway you will get the truth here—you will then know what to do.

The free course of treatment that we send will strengthen and regulate the heart. It will tone up the Stomach, Kidneys and Liver. It will give strength and vitality to the Nerves and Nerve Centers and build up the whole system. Remember, we make a specialty of treating Heart Disease and the other troubles that so often go with it. This is our life work—and all our knowledge and experience thus gained is yours gladly and freely just for the asking.

And so I say again, if you do need this help, you'd better send right now, for, of course, I cannot continue to make this offer indefinitely.

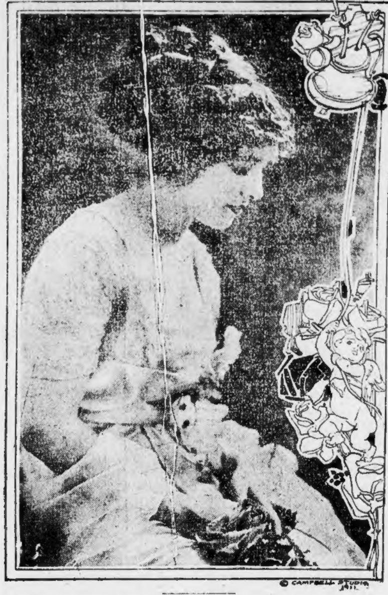
Miss Gould, Who Becomes Lady Decies on Tuesday



© CAMPBELL STUDIO 1911.

ARMY OF DRESSMAKERS ARE RUSHING WORK UPON BRIDE-ELECT'S TROUSSEAU.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The making of the extensive trousseau of Miss Vivien Gould, who is to be married next Tuesday to Lord Decies, is nearing an end. The lingerie, all made in Paris, has been delivered at the Gould house at No. 857 Fifth avenue, and women from the designer's New York establishment are putting the finishing touches to these garments, which for simple elegance, it is said, have had no equal in previous bridal outfits here.

Fifty women are embroidering designs on the many evening and afternoon gowns of the future Lady Decies. Threadlike designs are used, for it is Miss Gould's wish that nothing in the trousseau be overdone. The palest shades have been used, and there is much cream white among the fabrics. One hundred women are making waists and seventy-five men and women are fashioning skirts—the women working on the soft skirts, the men making these of the tailored suits. There are many rich wraps and tea gowns, all of the same delicate shades.

Clothes Fitted on Dummies.

Those arranging the trousseau say Miss Gould is a delight to a dressmaker, for she is easily pleased and her slim figure is fitted easily. Artificial figures, chiefly, have been used in draping her gowns.

Secrecy is maintained about the bride's gown. It is said it will have a train eight yards long and will be of white satin embroidered with silver roses. The bridesmaids' gowns will be of cream white chiffon over satin, festooned with pale green ribbons. The girls will wear wreaths of green leaves. It has not been decided whether they shall carry bouquets or satin-covered Bibles.

The entire wedidng is to be spring-like. Everything will be carried out in green and white. The loveliest flowers that can be forced at this time of year will be used by the florist, to decorate the Gould home and St. Bartholomew's Church. From early Monday until near Tuesday noon sixty men will be busy in that work, chiefly in the church.

Flowers Typify Two Nations.

The chancel will be dressed in Spring shrubs such as white lilacs, forsythia, spirea, Japan lilies and double flowering cherries. The pillars of the church will be garlanded in English ivy and Alabama smilax, to proclaim the joining of an English and an American family. The altar will be surrounded with huge palms and white Killarney roses in tall vases. The aisles are to be lanes of white lilies and white marguerites set upon standards to give the effect of a grove of overtopping white.

So that there may be no repetition of the rush of souvenir seekers who swooped upon the decorations the day Marjorie Gould was married to Anthony Drexel, Jr., policemen will be stationed at all points where outsiders might penetrate. Mrs. Gould has ordered that all the flowers be distributed among the poor and in hospitals after the ceremony.

Lord Decies will give his farewell bachelor dinner this evening at the Ritz. His guests will include his best man, Lord Alastair Graham; Earl Percy, Lord Camoys, Robin Grey, Moncure Robinson, Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., Francis W. Crowinshield, Phoenix Ingraham, Robert H. Russell, the Hon. Seton Beresford, Colonel George Wilkinson and Captain Edward Lumb.

ARNOLD GIRL IS NOT FOUND

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The fifty-fourth day of the absence of Dorothy Arnold, the missing heiress, found the mystery as deep as ever. Her father, Francis R. Arnold, a wealthy importer, denied to-day the report sent out from Philadelphia that the girl's brother John had found her in that city.

Attorney John S. Keith, who accompanied Miss Arnold's brother in his search through Philadelphia, joined the father to-day in declaring that the report from Philadelphia was untrue. He announced that the girl's brother had returned from Philadelphia unsuccessful and added:

"Mr. Arnold worked on a number of good clews in Philadelphia, but we have not found her."

Excitement was caused here to-day by the dispatches saying that the girl had been found in the Quaker City. They stated that young Arnold had visited the office of Captain Souder and had announced that the girl had been found.

After a conference with his son, Miss Arnold's father declared to-day that he is more hopeful that she is alive.

The brother also said that the clue leading them to suppose that Miss Arnold is in Philadelphia was most promising. He admitted that he had been unable to run the information to earth, but would continue the search there soon.

The young man was seen at his home, No. 108 East Seventy-ninth street, shortly after his return. "I was forced to return because I had to give my attention to other things," he said, "but I am going back to take up the search again."

It is known that Miss Arnold has a host of friends in Philadelphia, as most of her school chums at Bryn Mawr lived in the Quaker City.

WOMAN ATTACKED BY PORTRAIT THIEVES

MONSON, Feb. 4.—Two men disguised with false beards entered Cushman Hall, the dormitory of Monson Academy, and attempted to steal the portrait of Frank Cushman, in whose memory the dormitory was erected. One of the men was seen in the hall on the second floor by the cook, Mrs. Elizabeth Toomey, and he at once attacked her, throwing her to the foot of the stairs. Here the second man was working at the picture with a knife, and as the woman fought with the two men, this man cut her on the arm and also cut off a large amount of hair. The men escaped.

WOMAN HAS FIRST CABIN TO HERSELF

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Mrs. Alexander McDonald of Philadelphia, who arrived on board the Red Star liner Finland, was the only saloon passenger and had the entire first cabin to herself. Nine stateroom stewardesses, three cabin boys, a ship's surgeon, an orchestra and every convenience which goes to make a first cabin trip on the Finland pleasant were all at Mrs. McDonald's service.

GIRLS WIN FIGHT FOR ADMISSION

Two young English girls, Jane and Mary Barker, cabin passengers on the Leyland Liner Devonian ten days ago, have been released from detention at the Long Wharf Immigration Station, following an appeal to the Department of Commerce and Labor in Washington. They came here to join their father, George Barker, in Providence, and were held up by an immigration board on their arrival.

Tailored Suits, Coats and Dresses

Values 25.00, 35.00, 45.00, 58.00 to 65.00 each

New spring goods are beginning to arrive, and it is necessary for all pieces of winter goods remaining in stock to be disposed of at once.

It would almost pay to buy one of these garments to keep until next fall, but as none of them are very heavy weight they will be admirably suited for spring.

As examples of the values—there are 20 or 30 Suits of fine materials that were formerly 35.00 and 45.00—There are a dozen or more Model Suits, some were as high as 65.00—Several Broadcloth Suits and Velvet Suits, also Corduroy Suits that were 35.00 to 65.00—and many Suits were originally 20.00 and 25.00—whatever the former price, they are all marked 9.00, 15.00 and 22.50

There are not many Coats, but whatever the former price, 25.00 or 35.00, all are now 15.00 and 22.50—and the odd length Coats are at the same low prices

There are Dresses of almost every description, but not many of a kind—Silk Dresses that were 25.00 to 35.00—Lingerie Dresses as high as 65.00—Evening and Party Dresses, some of them models that were as high as 40.00 to 65.00—and the inexpensive Dresses that were 16.00 to 25.00—all marked 9.00 and 15.00.

ALL PRICED 9.00 15.00 AND 22.50

WONDERFUL SHANTUNG PONGEE SILKS

The values are 1.25, 1.50 and 2.00 the yard

Think of buying beautiful silks in the most effective of weaves known in the silk industry, at the price that the raw silk costs hardly more than the silk costs in China. Think of buying these silks in seven different weaves representing every style of silk to be worn out of doors in suits, dresses or garments. The diagonal weaves, the crepe weaves, the Faille weaves, the corded weaves, the serge weaves, the tailleur weaves, the pongee weave.

Without extravagance one can have two or three extra dresses of these beautiful silks, and instead of the material costing them from 15.00 to 30.00 the average price will be only about 7.50 for a dress pattern.

The new shades of blue, navy, copenhagen, the dull blues, the softest and most effective of the lavenders, heliotropes, wistarias and hyacinths, the new shades of rose, soft apricot and peach shades, the light browns with the golden tints, resedas, soft greens and dull greens, besides thousands of yards in the natural shades of the Chinese pongee, also ivory and black.

LOMASNEY CAP STIRS WARD 8

All Ward 8 is up in the air about it.

It may be that Martin Lomasney is not going to buy an aeroplane. It may be that he isn't taking a correspondence school course in aviation and has no intention of becoming a birdman and yet—

There's that Grahame-White cap, long, low and rakish which he is wearing at the Hendricks club and at the State House as mute, but assertive evidence that there's something in the wind.

Ground For Suspicion.

Mr. Lomasney, being one of the most prominent persons in Ward 8 and also being known as taking some little interest now and then in politics, is well known on Beacon Hill, and when he makes his appearance at the Capitol with the very latest creation in aviation millinery perched jauntily on his head, there is only one deduction to be drawn by the deducers at the State House. And that deduction is that Mr. Lomasney, who is Czar of Ward 8, is emulating other royalties and going in for aviation.

Those who know the extremely practical bent of Mr. Lomasney's mind will never accuse him of wearing that Grahame-White cap just for a bluff. The wise heimers up at the State House have it all figured out that Mr. Lomasney has quietly been studying aviation and that the cap is an advance notice that some one of these fine days he will be cutting aerial figure eights and doing other fancy stunts in aviation around the Gilded Dome.

Date Kept a Secret.

The Lomasney monoplane is said to be on the way from France, but the Ward 8 leader, with his usual dislike for the limelight, is preserving a strict silence as to the date and place for his initial flight.

Some people say this Lomasney aeroplane business is all a bluff. But there's the cap.

MILK WAGON WINS IN FIGHT WITH AUTO

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 4.—The milk wagon outfit of Frank H. Peck of Seekonk, Mass., and a big touring car owned by Harold C. Crane, met on Lemon street, here. The car started things by frightening Peck's horse. The animal headed straight for the auto. It landed heavily and swept away the car's forward left wheel, turned the front of the car into a twisted mass and caused other damage. Then the milk horse ran a mile with his undamaged cart. Not a bottle was broken.

PUBLIC DANGER

You Cannot Afford to Miss Reading This

We believe it is our duty to inform the public that the majority of fatal cases of pneumonia are caused by the patient taking for a cold some so-called cough cure which depends upon poisonous drugs for its effect.

These drugs deaden the nerves and stop secretion along the breathing tract—that causes pneumonia.

Father John's Medicine cures colds and throat and lung troubles without poisonous drugs. It is not a patent medicine, nor cough syrup, but a body builder—an eminent specialist prescribed it for the late Rev. Fr. John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., fifty years ago.

KELIHER CASE GROCER GUILTY

Francis J. Wood, the Shawmut avenue grocer, indicted for perjury during the trial of William J. ("Big Bill") Keliher, pleaded guilty to that charge before Judge Dodge in the United States Circuit Court. Wood, who lives in Somerville, will be sentenced next Friday.

Wood was brought into the case following the testimony submitted in regard to Keliher sending Coleman $200 while he was in Kansas City after his flight from here. Coleman could not cash the money order sent to him by telegraph because it was sent under the name of McTaggart. The money was refunded by a check on the Western Union.

The grocer testified that he cashed this check for a woman customer whom he did not know. It developed later that he did know the woman. She was then known as Mrs. Nellie Penn, who afterward became the wife of John R. Marshall, wanted by the government during the trial of Keliher. He was afterward arrested in Philadelphia.

He was covering part of the route which Theodore Roosevelt hunted when he was hurt.

DRIVEN INSANE BY OVERWORK

City Physician Fred Lowe said to-day that James Clancy of No. 109 River street, West Newton, who went on a rampage in that city, had been driven insane by overwork. Clancy has been committed to the Newton Insane Asylum.

Clancy, who is known as one of the hardest working men in Newton, laboring from early morning until late at night, was first seen acting in a strange manner, walking along Temple street.

Suddenly he ran up to a man. For a moment the man did not know what to do, but when Clancy's sturdy fist hit him in the side of the head he thought best to run.

A few moments later a call was received by Lieutenant Harrison at the police station, and a woman cried across the line, "Hurry some officers to Temple street. James Clancy has gone mad." While officers were investigating Clancy reached City Hall. At this juncture James J. Deffly of No. 7 Auburn street approached and as he passed Clancy he saluted and said, "How are you, Clancy?"

This was too much for Clancy, who ran up to Deffly and dealt him a staggering blow upon the back. By this time two patrolmen were closing in on their man.

JAPAN ORDERS MORE WARSHIPS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—Japan has placed her order for additional warships, according to J. F. Paige, supervising engineer, who has been superintending the installation of American turbine engines in the Japan dreadnoughts. "From now on," said Paige, "Japan will not only build its own warships, but they will also construct the engines and guns, which have been built in Germany and other countries. Over 25,000 men are now employed in the new Japanese shipbuilding plant."

WASHINGTON COLES VICTIM OF THIEF

As the result, he believes, of the treachery of an employe, Washington A. Coles of No. 26 Lyon street, Dorchester, a blind entertainer, has lost $90, which was taken from his pockets. Mr. Coles has sworn out a warrant for the young man who has been guiding him about town.

RENTS ROOM AND DIES SUDDENLY

TO RUN INDEPENDENT.

Papers were opened last night at the office of the Democratic City Committee of Cambridge. The caucus will be held February 21. Edward B. James, spoken of as a candidate for mayor, did not file papers, leaving the contest between J. Edward Barry and James A. Montgomery. James will run as an independent.

ONE DISH OF ICE CREAM COST $70

Far be it from anyone to say that Patrolman Patrick J. Doolin of the Somerville police force is one of the idle rich or one of those self-made millionaires who throw their money away carelessly for the sake of mere display. Even a Pittsburg "multi" might balk at paying $70 a plate for ice cream, but that's the price Doolin paid. It is only just to him to say that it wasn't altogether his fault.

Mayor Burns of Somerville is partly responsible for the high cost of living as it hits Mr. Doolin. When the wife of a Winter Hill physician complained to him that she found the patrolman sitting in the kitchen of her home one evening with her servant girl as his hostess, the bluecoat was summoned before the Mayor. The mistress didn't say that there was a love affair between the patrolman and the maid, but she did assert that there was some spooning going on, for Policeman Doolin had a spoon in his hand and a dish of ice cream was on the table. Deducing from this that the bluecoat was eating the ice cream, Mayor Burns waxed indignant at the idea of a Somerville policeman leaving his post for half and hour, and fined the unlucky bluecoat twenty days' pay, $70.

That is why bitter thoughts anent the high cost of living surge through the mind of Patrolman Doolin these wintry nights as he patrols his beat, and even the probability of Canadian reciprocity doesn't cheer him up. Ice cream isn't mentioned in President Taft's trade agreement with Canada anyway.

WHITE WOMAN SAVES NEGRO FROM MOB

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 4.—Pleadingly his intended victim saved the life of Armstead Howard, a negro, at Mormon City. A mob was on the way to jail to lynch Howard when Mrs. D. Egle appeared and asked that the law be allowed to take its course. The mob listened respectfully to Mrs. Egle, then dispersed.

WOMEN ACQUIT BOY.

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 4.—A jury of six women took only six minutes to return a verdict in an assault case. The case was that of an assault on Arthur Borchert by Karl Betschal, an eighteen-year-old milk dealer. The jury decided that Borchert had provoked the boy and liberated the latter.

FORCED BY GRATITUDE OF HUNDREDS

To Repeat His Offer

Of Nov. 12 in the Boston American.

I have been so moved the past few weeks by the gratitude of readers that I have decided to make again the offer which I made in the Nov. 12 issue. This is what I said: "I am going to Give Away a Free Trial Treatment for Deafness, to every sufferer who asks for it."

People by the hundred have come to my office, and letters of request have poured in; letters of grateful thanks have also poured in. From every part of the continent the people whom I have cured of that terrible affliction—Deafness—are thanking me.

A letter from Brooklyn says, "Allow me to thank you a thousand times for the good hearing you have restored to me." A letter from Chicago says: "I bless the day I saw your offer, for you have cured me of Deafness."

Deafness Treatment Free

These many letters of gratitude have touched my heart, and so I say again to the readers of the Boston American: "I will give away a free trial treatment for Deafness to every sufferer who calls at my office or who writes for it."

This offer can only be made for a very short time. If you are Deaf, or have any trouble with your ears, come or write for a Free Trial Treatment.

This trial treatment is entirely free. I want to help you. I know what you suffer in the approach of Deafness and the intolerable agony of complete Deafness. I know that I have cured many, many people who were Deaf. I want you to have the same opportunity to hear again. Send now a postcard or letter request. Don't delay, or it may be too late. If you have even the slightest feeling that something is wrong with your ears, be on the safe side and send for trial treatment. It won't cost you anything. If you are growing Deaf, and have become discouraged and tired of experimenting, profit by the example of those who have been cured by my treatment. Many of these people thought they never could be cured, they tried so many different things which never did them any good. MY treatment restored their hearing.

Send to Dr. Edward Gardner, Suite 463, 38 West 33d st., New York City, and get the Free Treatment.

NEXT GLYN BOOK TO BE RELIGIOUS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Elinor Glyn, author of "Three Weeks," who is here for a two weeks' visit, declares that she is about to write a book on religion, a work that will deal plainly and frankly with the subject, "seeking the truth without hypocrisy," she says.

Mrs. Glyn was found to-day in the most luxurious suite of an up-town hotel. Attired in an azure blue kimona, a gorgeous creation, she reclined on a magnificent plush couch and discussed her plans frankly. She was attended by a red-haired maid, the color of hair being in entire keeping with her own. A man-servant in uniform waited on the door. It was a picture of Oriental splendor. Mrs. Glyn remained in her comfortable position on the couch as she spoke. The maid brought her occasional refreshments.

"When I landed on the pier," she said, "the refreshing air of your big city acted like champagne on me. It makes one feel young again. I am here on business and will remain a fortnight. I shall call on a host of friends, and propose to spend one day in your Metropolitan Museum, where I hope the dear, sweet girls who work there will invite me to lunch as they did before."

Asked about the coming marriage of Miss Vivien Gould and Lord Decies, Mrs Glyn said:

"I hope they will be happy. They are very delightful people. If a man has money it makes no difference what his age and what his wife's age is. I think, however, that where a girl has two suitors, one poor and another wealthy, it might be a good plan for her to wait six months before deciding the question.

"Have you ever regretted writing 'Three Weeks' Mrs. Glyn?" she was asked.

"I should say not," was the reply. "Why should I regret the thing that is my glory, my greatest pride? But I do believe in the French custom of not letting children read until they are grown. It should be adopted by all countries. My book on religion will be a set of essays, and will deal with seeking the truth without hypocrisy—a thing I hate."

"Have you taken any part in the fight for the ballot in England?"

"Woman suffrage doesn't interest me," said Mrs. Glyn. "It is a matter of indifference to me whether they get their rights or not. I suppose if they scream long enough they will finally be recognized."

WILL DISCUSS PRISON SYSTEMS

"The Prison Systems of America. Do They Reform?" will be the topic of Lewis J. Bernhardt, superintendent of the New Haven Rescue Mission, which is managed by the students of Yale, at the meeting to be held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association in Tremont Temple to-morrow afternoon. William McKwan of Scotland, sometimes called the "Scotch Sanky," will contribute a number of songs. The meeting opens at 3 o'clock.

JOHN D. AND CARNEGIE RACE—James J. Montague will describe it in verse, laughably illustrated, in the City Life Section of the Sunday AMERICAN.

MRS. GLYN, WHO IS BACK FOR A TWO WEEKS' VISIT

ASK HASKINS TO HEAD UNIVERSITY

Dr. Charles Homer Haskins, dean of the Harvard graduate school since a year ago and professor of history in Harvard University since 1902, has been offered the presidency of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, to succeed President Ira Remsen, who has resigned.

Whether he will accept the presidency of Johns Hopkins, from which he was graduated in 1887, when only seventeen years old, was not known at Harvard University to-day.

Dr. Haskins left Cambridge a couple of nights ago for an absence of four days, leaving word at Prescott Hall, where he resides, that he intended to visit Philadelphia and would return to Cambridge to-morrow night.

Dr. Haskins was seriously considered for the presidency of the university to succeed Dr. Charles W. Eliot, now president emeritus. When Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell was elected president of Harvard University, January 13, 1909, the corporation further honored Dr. Haskins by selecting him as dean of the graduate school, succeeding Prof. John Henry Wright, who died November 25, 1909.

Dr. Haskins was born in Meadville, Pa., December 21, 1870. He entered Johns Hopkins University at an early age, and was graduated in 1887 with the Bachelor of Arts degree, and in 1890 received the Ph.D. degree there. In his intervals of teaching since he has performed advanced work in Johns Hopkins and in the universities in Paris and Berlin.

Immediately after his graduation he was made an instructor in history at Johns Hopkins, but in 1890 he left to go to the University of Wisconsin as instructor in history. He quickly passed through various grades in that university, and in 1891 was made full professor of European history.

CONNECTICUT BRIBE CHARGE

HARTFORD, Ct., Feb. 4.—"I was very plainly informed that if I would switch from Lake to Goodwin the 'present' that would be given to me 'would make my eyes pop out.' This statement was made to me by Thomas Burrows of Deep River, Middlesex County, just as I was leaving the Allyn Hotel in Hartford for the convention hall.

"I told Mr. Burrows that if he or any other of the Goodwin people dared to repeat such an offer to me in any form I would go on the floor of the convention and tell all about it. I had been instructed for Lake, as had nearly every other of the forty-two members of my delegation, and I refused either to be bamboozled or bought by the Goodwin people. The majority of our delegation, however, flopped from Lake to Goodwin after they arrived at Hartford."

The foregoing statement was made to-day to an AMERICAN correspondent by John J. Lawless, a prominent young attorney of New London.

Will Shock the State.

Coincidentally with the filing to-day by J. Henry Roraback of the expenditures he made as the political agent for Senator-elect George P. McLean in the recent campaign, the amazing frankness of Lawless will probably lead to revelations that will shock conservative Connecticut as nothing in the late history of the State has done.

The Lawless statement may furnish a key to the meaning of an assertion made to the AMERICAN correspondent to-day by Roraback in explanation of the surprising smallness of the amount he has sworn to as having spent for the promotion of McLean's senatorial candidacy. The Roraback return as filed with the Secretary of State accounts for the disbursement of only $14,541.51. In explanation Roraback said: "Many expenses supposedly incurred by Mr. McLean were paid by the defeated nominee for Governor, Charles A. Goodwin."

Present Was to Be Cash.

In further talk with the AMERICAN correspondent at New London to-day Lawless says that Burrows did not name any figure; he merely said that if Lawless would change from Lake to Goodwin "the present" which would follow that action would "make his eyes pop out." Moreover, Burrows did not claim to have the money himself, according to Lawless, but said he knew where it was and could guarantee that "the present" would be immediately forthcoming.

In another and more subtle way Lawless learned that "the present" would have been an amount of cold cash ranging from $3,500 to $5,000.

"Just before I was approached by Burrows," said the New London lawyer, "two men, total strangers, walked up behind me while I was writing a letter in the writing room of the Allyn Hotel and began to talk in a tone evidently intended for me to hear every word. The gist of their conversation was that delegates-at-large to the convention who would change from Lake to Goodwin could get anywhere from thirty-five hundred to five thousand dollars each. I pretended not to hear them; or, rather, I did not turn around and look at them, but just continued writing as if nothing had happened. It was shortly after this that Burrows came to me and told me of 'the present' awaiting if I would jump in the Goodwin bandwagon."

Not the least astonishing feature of the Lawless-Burrows matter is that no action has yet been taken on it by the proper authorities. Under the statutes and practice of Connecticut prosecutions in cases of this kind are started in the counties in which the alleged offences occur.

City Prosecutor E. C. Dickenson was informed of the allegation several weeks ago. Soon after he learned of it he went to New London and saw Lawless.

Mary Boyle O'Reilly will tell how the fight was won against the baby farm in the Sunday AMERICAN.

CITIZENS REPLY TO POLICE HEAD

Prompt rebukes to Police Commissioner O'Meara for his complaint that his department has received no help from the people, organizations or the courts in fighting vice in Boston have been administered by Mayor Fitzgerald and by the Rev. Frederick B. Allen, president of the Watch and Ward Society. The courts have yet to be heard from on Mr. O'Meara's remarkable plea in excuse for the self-admitted failure of the police in the suppression of crime and immorality.

"If the police commissioner had called on the people to co-operate with him he would have had more success," said the Mayor. "My experience in this department has convinced me that there is always a prompt reply every time the public is called on to co-operate in something that will benefit the people."

"It is a strange statement for the Commissioner to make," said the Rev. Mr. Allen, "in view of the fact that we have always stood ready to co-operate with the police in their work."

Tip to Successor.

This is the statement in Commissioner O'Meara's annual report in which, after practically admitting the failure of his department to suppress vice he complainingly declares:

"If a future Police Commissioner were intending to pursue the same course with respect to the business of vice that has been followed for four years, I should advise him he might expect loyal support from the police when once he had convinced them that he was in earnest; little encouragement from courts; bitter hostility from persons whose profits were curtailed; indifference from the public; and from a few enthusiasts in the cause of social purity, whose admirable purposes are not sustained by straight and intelligent thinking, he would be sure to receive some measure of abusive criticism."

And to this the active head of the Watch and Ward Society, which fights vice 365 days in the year, answers:

"We were surprised at Commissioner O'Meara's statement," declared President Allen. "It is a strange statement for him to make, in view of the fact that we have always stood ready to co-operate with the police in this work.

"I could tell of many instances only recently where we have not had the co-operation of the Police Commissioner. The fact is that he has been antagonistic to our society from the beginning, and it may be said to date from the time when he was editor of the Boston Journal.

"There has been no difference since he has been Commissioner; that same feeling has shown itself in every effort of the society.

Do Not Expect Popularity.

A society which aims to fight vice cannot hope to be popular with all. The very mission of our society would make it unpopular with some people. We do not aim to escape criticism, but we have tried in every way to curb vice, and in many instances we have eradicated it. There is no use of going into any particulars in this respect. To say that the police have had no helpful or appreciative response from any direction is untrue. We are always glad to co-operate with the police, and if we have not done so it is not our fault. But this is true: Mr. O'Meara has been clearly antagonistic to us.

"Mr. O'Meara has in many respects made an admirable commissioner. Many who are intimately acquainted with his work feel this and I do not want to be understood as saying anything about his administration except that he has not shown that needed co-operation with our society which we had a right to expect.

"Have Aided the Police."

"Then, we have helped the police by the legislation which we have introduced into the Legislature against the white slave traffic and under this legislation we have secured many convictions.

"Does not Mr. O'Meara esteem this of any help at all? Have we not done much to show him where vice existed in this city and asked his help? Have not our agents done all in their power to get the needed information and presented it to the Commissioner and asked his co-operation?

"But the whole matter is right here; Mr. O'Meara has not been able to get over his antagonism. He has kept it up against our society. We have done much pioneer work in this city that has ultimately gone to the credit of the Police Board; but our society took the initiative.

"Now in all that I have said I mean to be fair to the Police Commissioner. He has had a very responsible position and has filled it well. There is some doubt whether we can get another to fill it so well in many respects as he has.

"But when you consider the interests of our society and his late accusation that he has had no help, it calls for some comment.

"If vice is modernized through the uses of the telephone and cannot be handled in the old way, let me say that we are now on the eve of getting such information by which this will be covered.

Try to Clean Up the City.

"Our society is in this work to clean up the city. We are constantly studying methods to get convictions against those who are carrying on an immoral business.

"For thirty-two years we have stood before this community against all types of vice. We have done this work in the midst of much criticism. We have tried to co-operate with the Police Commissioner in every detail. We feel that we have made good. We do not see the need of any other society like what has been recently started in this city by a number of representative ministers and laymen.

"The Watch and Ward Society lives to do a good work. It has nothing in the past to be ashamed of. All it asks is that its work will be appreciated by the Police Commissioner. That he will outlive some of his past feelings against us. We believe he will when he understands us better and can enter more comprehensively into the kind of work that we are doing, which is to aid the police board and to work in connection with it in the suppression of vice."

8 ARRAIGNED FOR EXPLOSION

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 4.—Eight men charged with manslaughter and criminal carelessness as a result of the explosion which last Wednesday shook Manhattan and Jersey City and killed twenty-four persons, were arraigned before Judge Huere in criminal court to-day. All the accused men waived examination and with their counsel went before the court of common pleas to give bond for their appearance at trial.

In the Common Pleas Court they were held for the Grand Jury on a charge of manslaughter.

They included the captain of the lighter Catharine W., to which the explosive was being transferred; Arthur Hamilton, general freight agent of the Central; Louis P. Gallaudet, pier master in charge of Pier Seven; Charles Ridder, a checker; John M. Morris, the Jersey City freight agent of the road; Frederick C. Peters, Burr St. John and R. P. Morris of the Powder Company.

Four sailors of the sailing vessel Ingrid, which was anchored near the Catherine W., were held in $500 bonds.

The bail for the eight defendants was fixed by Judge Carey at $2,500 each and this was furnished.

FILE $10,000 SUITS AGAINST VESSEL

Suits aggregating $10,000 have been filed in the United States District Court against the owners of the British steamer Wearside, the giant sugar freighter that dragged her anchors during the heavy gale of Monday, bumping and damaging three barges. The Commercial Towboat Company, the White Oak Transportation Company and the Central Railroad of New Jersey started the suits.

PHYSICIAN ILL; KILLS HIMSELF

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Sitting in an armchair in his library, Dr. Stanley D. Curran, aged forty-one, shot and killed himself early to-day in his home, No. 236 West One Hundred and Twenty-second street. The physician had more than a year been a sufferer from acute indigestion. A note addressed to his wife was on the library table and read:

"I ask the forgiveness of any one I have injured and I forgive any one who has harmed me. Kisses for my dear girl."

Frank B. Bartlett of No. 122 Pearl street, Somerville, an engineer employed at Van Nostrand's brewery in Charlestown, was suffocated by ammonia fumes when the cover of a tank containing ammonia blew off shortly before noon to-day.

The tank cover struck Bartlett in the leg, breaking it. He was knocked down and before he could get to his feet and flee he was asphyxiated by the gas. Bartlett was fifty-five years old and married.

Town lots in Coleman should make immense profits for fortunate holders. Coleman is now a fast growing town, with bank, business stores, etc., and is in the very heart of the new district. It will be the focus of 5,000 farms. The onrush of settlers will increase values enormously. Other towns in Oklahoma, under similar circumstances, showed profits of 100% after land had been opened. Muskogee, Oklahoma City, Guthrie, Tulsa were made famous and rich over night by just such land openings. Coleman lots should advance by leaps and bounds, just as other trading points that were made cities over night by the government land openings. One man bought a lot for $175 in Muskogee and after 15 years sold it for $300,000. Another took a profit of $45,000 in seven years in Enid. Another invested $1,500 in Oklahoma City and sold it for $50,000. There are simply hundreds of instances like these.

IT'S COLEMAN'S TURN THIS MONTH

NEW CHAMPION THIN FIREMAN

District Chief Henry Fox has long held the reputation of being the thinnest man in the fire department, but he has been obliged to relinquish the honors to Lieutenant Joe Humphreys of Chemical One, who early to-day climbed head first through a window, eight inches by a foot and a half, to put out a fire in the shoe store of Coes & Young at No. 20 School street.

The firemen had been trying to get into the store without breaking the fancy plate glass door, when Chief Fox returned from the rear of the building to find Humphreys inside smashing away at the woodwork under the front window with an axe.

"How'd you get in there?" asked Fox, in amazement.

"I crawled in through the window," said Humphreys, still swinging the axe. Fox looked at the window. Then he glanced in at Humphreys. "You did what?" he said, in an incredulous voice.

"I crawled in through the window," repeated Humphreys. Fox thought the lieutenant was trying to push one over on him, but when the group of reporters and policemen who were standing around confirmed Humphrey's statement, the tall fire leader said, "Well, if you did, you've got it on me. I thought I was the thinnest man in the department, but now I guess I will have to hand it out to you."

The blaze was discovered behind the heavy brass sign on the front of the shoe store by Patrolman "Alec" Lindsay of the Court Square station. With the assistance of a pail of water, secured at a lunch room across the street, "Alec" transformed himself into a lone bucket brigade and tried to put the fire out unaided. The flames had burned under the front window of the store. "Alec" found himself unable to reach the blaze and he notified the crew of Chemical One.

BOY BANDIT MAKES APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

DENVER, Feb. 4.—Benjamin Dewey Miller, eleven years old, who is in the county jail here awaiting trial on the charge of robbing the postoffice at Gardner, Cal., has written to President Taft pleading his case. The letter addressed to "Uncle Sam" reads:

"Dear Uncle Sam: I am going to tell you about what I done. I broke into your Post Office with two other kids. We know we done wrong. We got $14 and four or five packages of stamps; that's all. My father and mother are poor and ain't got no money. I read Jesse James's story, and that's what put me up to it. If you will let me go this time I won't do it no more. I was in bed when the other kids come and called me. This is all for this time, so good-bye."

SUNDAY VAUDEVILLE IN SOCIALISTS' PLAN

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 4.—The Sunday afternoon concerts given by the Socialist officials at the city's expense, though ten cents admission is charged, show a deficit of $100 a week. The Socialists believe this is not too much to pay for entertaining the people with classical music and ragtime melodies played alternately by a high-priced orchestra, but in an effort to reduce the expense they have decided to add a vaudeville performance on Sunday afternoons in a hall adjoining the auditorium in which the concerts are given.

AUDIENCE COLD TO MISS GARDEN

THE CAST:

Faust	Charles Dalmores
Mephistopheles	Leon Rothier
Valentine	George Baklanoff
Wagner	Pierre Letol
Marguerite	Mary Garden
Siebel	Jeska Swartz
Martha	Marie Mattfeld

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Mary Garden made her debut with the Boston Opera Company last night as Marguerite in "Faust." The public was wild to hear her and the Opera House could have been filled several times over.

The audience was eager, expectant, and friendly, but somehow it never got very demonstrative, and it filed out after the prison scene in comparative silence.

Why? Miss Garden ought to ask why, and make sure she gets the right answer.

Boston audiences are inclined to be cold, but there were icicles on this one. The most enthusiastic moment occurred at the end of the third act, and it belonged to George Baklanoff, who sang Valentine.

But this does not mean that there was not an excellent performance of "Faust" last night. The Faust of Charles Dalmores was the best heard in the Boston Opera House this season. Baklanoff's Valentine is truly superb, while Leon Rothier sang well as Mephistopheles. And Mary Garden is undoubtedly a good Marguerite.

Not Equal to Task.

Only there are many artists who are comparatively unknown but who can sing this role as well or better than the famous American soprano.

Garden is the greatest actress on the operatic stage. As an exponent of modern French operatic roles she has no peer. But when she sings Marguerite she deliberately puts off all her other qualities and depends on the voice alone.

Mary Garden's voice, unaided, is not equal to the task.

One cannot quarrel with her conception of the role. She is demure, simple, loving, trusting, and suffering. But Marguerite is not a great acting role and a great actress cannot do much with it.

The modern French operas are dramatic and unmelodious. The singers, gasp, wail, shriek, but do not sing. "Faust" is an old fashioned opera, a succession of beautiful melodies. There is nothing like melody to show up a faulty voice, and Miss Garden soon displayed high tones that were thin, bitter, and painfully produced, while she was unable entirely to overcome her mannerisms of Melisande, slurring from note to note and wailing at intervals.

Fails on High Note.

Yet the spinning song and the jewel song were beautifully sung, and in the prison trio she produced broad rich tones until the end, when she was unable to sustain the high note.

Dalmores was most wonderfully dressed as Faust. He had a different costume for every scene, each more bizarre than the other. He sang with a vigor and manliness, a purity and sweetness of tone that proved he is still the prince of French tenors.

Rothier was undistinguished as Mephistopheles, but was vocally adequate. Miss Swartz sang sweetly as Siebel and Miss Mattfeld was a diverting Martha.

Capiet conducted excellently, and the chorus singing was very fine.

Bella Alten and Marie Mattfield of the Metropolitan Opera Company, appear this afternoon in the first Boston performance of the fairy opera "Hansel und Gretel." The scenic production is magnificent, the first act representing a little hut of a poor broom maker, the second the forest near the ill-famed Ilenstein and the third "the witch's house."

Engelbert Humperdinck, the composer of "Hansel und Gretel," was in this country a few weeks ago superintending the first production of his new opera, "Konigskinder." He witnessed a performance of "Hansel und Gretel" at the Metropolitan Opera House and pronounced the impersonations of Miss Bella Alten and Mme. Marie Mattfeld among the best he has ever seen.

MYSTERY IN WINROW DEATH

No progress has been made by the Somerville police in determining whether the death of William Winrow, whose body was found under his automobile, was self inflicted or accidental. The theory of foul play, at first advanced, has been abandoned.

If it was a case of suicide Winrow took an original way of ending his life. His body was discovered under his automobile, which he kept in a small shed in rear of his grocery store at Willow and Morrison avenues. Neighbors had forced an entrance into the shed after Winrow's absence had been reported by a boy whom he had left in charge of the store and who became alarmed when his employer did not return after several hours.

The shed door was bolted on the inside and the windows tightly closed. Members of the fire department who had been summoned took the body out and vainly used every method of resuscitation.

In the opinion of Medical Examiner Durell, Winrow was suffocated by gasoline fumes from the machine. The police are inclined to believe that while he was working about the machine, the motor was started and the gas from the cylinders, having no way of egress from the shed because of the closed windows and door, suffocated Winrow as he lay under the car.

No explanation of the tightly-closed door and windows has been offered.

3-CENT FARE URGED FOR STRAP-HANGERS

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 4.—Two bills in the interest of the "strap-hangers" in trolley cars, similar to the measures just filed in the Connecticut General Assembly, were presented in the Legislature to-day. Representative George B. West introduced an act providing for a three-cent fare for passengers who are unable to obtain a seat. Representative Adam R. Ajello offered a more drastic measure allowing standing commuters to ride free.

ARREST POLICEMAN ON LARCENY CHARGES

Patrolman William E. Taylor of Somerville, when he reported in uniform for duty early to-day, was arrested on two warrants charging larceny of a dozen storage batteries from a storehouse of the Boston Elevated and larceny of a fountain pen from Dr. W. P. Hill of No. 5 Walnut street, Somerville. Taylor has been a member of the reserve force. He was appointed March 14, 1908.

ESTHER QUINN, WHO IS SUING PROFESSOR PECK

PECK SCORES ON BUTLER IN SUIT

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Harry Thurston Peck, the Latin professor who was dismissed from Columbia University after Miss Esther Quinn sued him for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise, to-day won a point in his $50,000 suit against Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, for alleged defamation of character.

The basis of this litigation was made known when Supreme Court Justice Gerard denied Dr. Butler's motion for a bill of particulars. Dr. Butler has not yet served a formal answer, although he has filed an affidavit denying the first cause of action.

Dr. Peck asks $25,000 damages for a statement which he asserts President Butler made on July 10 last in a letter. This statement Peck quotes as follows: "I have been autocratic only in shielding Professor Peck's immoral acts from the knowledge of the trustees."

Dr. Peck declares this statement brands him as an immoral man, although he has never committed any act that would justify the assertion. He declares that his reputation as an author and scholar has been irreparably damaged.

President Butler's application says that he has searched all the copies of the letters he sent last July, but can find no letter in which the alleged defamatory statement occurred. He denies that he ever wrote it, and declares that he has not been able to find a newspaper in which it was published.

As a second cause, Dr. Peck alleges there was published in a New York newspaper, on July 3 last, certain remarks attributed to President Butler, among which was the following:

"If he (Peck) makes these statements attributed to him, his mind must be unhinged by the severe trials through which he has passed."

Dr. Peck declares that this statement brands him as a lunatic, and asks $25,000 in damages. President Butler in his affidavit does not admit he made the remark. His application for a bill of particulars, it is understood, will be renewed after issue is joined.

Miss Quinn's suit is pending in the Supreme Court. She charges that after winning her love and gaining her promise to marry him, Professor Peck married another woman. Recently Miss Quinn was examined before trial, but Dr. Peck did not get much information on some of the points that he sought to have cleared up.

DEATH SECRETS SHOCK RUSSIA

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 4.—Even the empire of Russia, which had the greatest murderers in the world's history, is horrified at the amazing revelations made at the trial of Dr. Pantchenko and Count Patrick O'Brien de Lacy, accused of the murder of Count Vasili Bouturlin.

Further revelations were made to-day, throwing light upon black crimes which have baffled detectives for years. The police prefect of St. Petersburg declared to-day that Pantchenko, the Mephisto of modern times, has accumulated millions of dollars through murder.

Wearing a sharp Vandyke beard—the kind always associated with Satan in pictures of him—Dr. Pantchenko sat in the courtroom to-day and listened at times with stolid indifference and at others with tremors of fear to testimony which establishes him in the mind of the world as the master murderer of the age.

Worse Than the Borgias.

Subtle inventions of his own outshining the devices of Lucrezia Borgia, the great poisoner of the dark ages, were used by the doctor to consummate his crimes.

Testimony adduced to-day showed that conspirators who called Pantchenko this [illegible] of death left all the details to the aged physician. He would wait until an opportune time and then contrive to have himself called in when the intended victim fell ill.

Druggists on the stand said they sold to the prisoner quantities of diphtheria toxin and cholera germs. They testified, however, that Pantchenko said that he wanted them for scientific experiments when the purchases were made.

Second Dealer in Death.

Count de Lacy, the other defendant, who is alleged by Pantchenko to have hypnotized him and compelled him to murder Count Vasili Bouturlin, is said to have spent years in the Orient studying the occult sciences of the Far East. According to the doctor, DeLacy is also a dealer in death, although he had Count Vasil Bouturlin killed to acquire an estate.

Crowds besieged the court room to-day. Among them were fashionably dressed women who clamored for admission. Pantchenko wore an air of apparent indifference when he was brought in with De Lacy, but when the Count glared at the doctor the latter shrank back seemingly in fear.

USES DEADLY GERMS TO FIGHT DISEASE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—Remarkable and almost instant cures are said to have been made in severe cases of tuberculosis, pneumonia and typhoid fever at the Southern Pacific Hotel by a new method of treatment, the discovery of Dr. A. F. Schafer of Bakersfield. A serum made from poisons exuded by the germs of typhoid, tuberculosis and pneumonia is used to fight these diseases. Nine pneumonia patients were quickly cured by the serum.

DOES WHAT MANY DOCTORS CANNOT DO

Prof. Samuels, a Wichita, Kansas, Scientist, Has a Strange Method of Treatment, and Succeeds in Many Cases Which Medical Men Pronounce Hopeless.

Science Scores a Notable Victory!

Tuberculosis, Bright's Disease, Epilepsy, Blindness, Catarrh, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Cataracts and Many Other Diseases Which the Ordinary Practitioner Regards as Incurable Yield Promptly to Prof. Samuels' Wonderful Treatment, and His Success Is AN ACKNOWLEDGED MARVEL OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY!

Many of Prof. Samuels' Patients, When Interviewed Concerning His Treatment, Declare It to Be Almost Miraculous in Its Effects, and Avow That He Is the Only Man Who Is Capable of Saving Many Whom the Doctors Say Must Die!

WICHITA, Kas.—There is nothing in all the world that is more strange and wonderful than the achievements of science, and this seems to have been amply verified of late through the remarkable work being accomplished by Professor Samuels, an eminent scientist of Wichita, Kas.

No doubt Professor Samuels' extraordinary achievements have aroused unusual notice because he has been doing things which another class of learned men have tried to make us believe could not be done. From our earliest recollection we have been assured by the doctors that such diseases as consumption, Bright's disease, epilepsy, blindness, etc., were beyond human skill; that palliative treatment in such cases was all that we could expect from the medical practitioner; but to refute all these carefully nurtured theories here comes Professor Samuels with the announcement that he has a scientific treatment which enables him to restore to health many of those suffering from these ills, and to prove that his statements are true he proceeds to relieve scores upon scores of these very cases—the kind the doctors would have us believe are hopelessly incurable.

As might naturally be expected this has made the doctors very bitter against Professor Samuels. Seeing their own glory dimmed by his achievements, they have arrayed themselves against him in the hope that they may be able to divert the people from his highly successful method of treatment; they have gone on the housetops and shouted "Quack!" and "Charlatan!" and "Fake!" in the hope of frightening away the sufferers who fain would escape an untimely grave; they have even caused his arrest on numerous occasions because, not being a man of their own faulty creed, he holds no medical diploma. But despite these acts of injustice and these spiteful persecutions it is noteworthy that Professor Samuels, according to testimonials of his patients, is constantly increasing the number of wonderful cures. Prosecutions at the instance of jealous physicians have in every case resulted in failure, because those who say they have been cured have come to his rescue and have shown that he has done what the medical men have utterly failed to do. Men and women believed to have stood upon the brink of the grave have gone into court hale and strong, to become living witnesses as to his marvelous ability to relieve consumption, epilepsy, Bright's disease and many other ills which doctors admit are beyond their power to cure. Is it to be wondered at that the malicious work of his enemies should be shorn of its expected fruits under such circumstances? Where could a jury be found that would convict a man of a crime when his only offence had been to relieve the blind, the halt and lame, and assist the enfeebled consumptive to grow strong in the full vigor of health, or the pitiable epileptic to cast off his yoke of affliction?

It is doubtful if another man could be found in all this wide world who has done for afflicted humanity greater deeds of helpfulness than this resourceful scientist, Professor Samuels. It matters not whether he holds a diploma from some medical college; it matters not that his methods of treatment differ widely from those employed by the regular schools. The fact that he has, in his scientific researches, found a means of bringing health and strength to those whom the doctors cannot cure should be sufficient to entitle him to the fullest measure of public confidence and honest approval. And that the public has recognized the wonderful merit of his treatment, and has given him its confidence and patronage, is substantially attested by the great numbers who come or send to him for treatment; and as a large percentage of the cases thus treated claim to be permanently cured it is but natural that his fame should steadily increase and the medical profession should become alarmed over his great success.

Professor Samuels' unique method of treatment is almost certain to invite skepticism from those of unprogressive minds because it differs radically from the methods employed by physicians and because few people, even among the medical fraternity, are able to understand it. The remedial agents employed are, of course, Professor Samuels' own secret; but it is the manner of their administration which confuses and dumfounds the people. This treatment, consisting simply of the application daily for a few weeks of a few drops of colorless, odorless liquid to the eyes, established a new departure in therapeutics. There are no powerful or poisonous drugs introduced into the stomach; none of the usual drastic methods of procedure employed; just the simple and unheard-of means of infusing life and vigorous health to the enfeebled organs through the nerve centers—a novel method of absorption which, as the testimonials of his patients attest, rejuvenates the entire system and restores it to its normal functional activity and power. Strange as his method of treatment seems to be, its efficiency is founded upon the simplest scientific elements, and its success in the supposedly incurable diseases indicates that Professor Samuels has completely outdistanced all other medical experts and scientists in his researches, establishing a new departure in therapeutics which bids fair to completely revolutionize the old-time theories now in vogue. As matters stand to-day, as far as we know Professor Samuels is the only man in the world who knows this strange and marvelous secret, and is the only man who can offer any reliable assurance that sufferers from consumption, epilepsy, Bright's disease and these other maladies regarded as incurable may be restored to health; but his phenomenal success has pointed the way to other scientists in search of life's great truths, and the time will no doubt come when the regular doctor will be compelled to change his code of ethics in order to gain the confidence of afflicted humanity. But until that era dawns Professor Samuels, it is believed, will stand alone as the undisputed champion of a new art in medical healing; the one man to whom the sufferer from the great white plague and other deadly diseases may come with a reasonable hope of being brought out of the shadow of death into the fair sunlight of life.

In his quest of some reliable evidence of Professor Samuels' reputed wonderful cures a representative of the press encountered such an array of confirmatory testimony that he might have found material for a large volume had he so desired. Never in our history as a nation has there been a treatment in medical science that has aroused more enthusiasm and honest fervor among the masses than Professor Samuels' strange treatment has occasioned. As a matter of fact about the only people who were unwilling to ascribe full credit to the great scientist's phenomenal record of results were the doctors, and even some of this class could be fair-minded enough to endorse his method of treatment. Notably among this class were Vere V. Hunt, LL. D. and M. D., formerly division surgeon of the Frisco railway at Kildare, Okla., and Dr. W. F. Parr, a well known physician of Wichita, Kas. Dr. Hunt, who had taken Professor Samuels' treatment for an obstinate nervous disorder with great benefit, warmly endorsed the new method of treatment and advanced the prediction that wonderful results would accrue from its application in the future, when its real value as a therapeutic agent became better known.

Dr. Parr, whose wife states that she has been cured by Professor Samuels of hay fever and a complication of diseases that had made her an invalid for years, and had found no relief in the remedies prescribed by members of his own profession, had this to say: "Many people refuse to take Professor Samuels' treatment because they do not understand it. Neither do I understand how putting a few drops of clear liquid into the eyes can effect such wonderful results; but it surely does, and that is sufficient. I know my wife was in a fearful condition in July, 1902. I know that her health generally was very bad for many years. I know she took Professor Samuels' treatment after all methods of cure had been tried, and I know that she is in better health every way than she has been for twenty years." Perhaps many other physicians, had they as full a knowledge of its virtues as Dr. Parr, would be honest enough to give proper credit to Professor Samuels' wonderful method of treatment, but "there are none so blind as those who will not see," and it looks as though most of the doctors are trying very hard not to see what this great scientist is doing.

However, the interviewer found that Professor Samuels was in no sense dependent upon the endorsement or co-operation of the medical fraternity. Written testimonials on file in the office of the professor show there are hundreds of men and women who have tried every means of cure the doctors could devise without having received any specific benefit, and they have gone to Professor Samuels and found health as a result of his treatment. For the benefit of our readers, whom we believe will welcome as much information on this subject as can be obtained, we have secured the testimony of several of Professor Samuels' former patients, which certainly makes interesting reading.

Mr. Joe Wetherholt, better known as "Blind Joe," for many years a vendor of peanuts and popcorn on the streets of Topeka, Kas., in his testimonial states that he had been totally blind for ten years. Every form of treatment within his means had been tried to no purpose, and his case was regarded as hopelessly incurable. He finally was induced to take treatment from Professor Samuels, and at the end of four months his sight was restored.

Mr. Frank Hoff, at present engaged in business at 249 North Main street, Wichita, Kas., in his testimonial states that he had been told by his physicians that he could live but a short time. He had been treated by one of the most skilled specialists in Brooklyn, N. Y., and by other eminent medical men, and they held out no hope to him. He was afflicted with that dread disease, consumption, and it was believed he was beyond human aid. He was very low when Professor Samuels began treating him, but he began to improve at once and was ultimately restored to health. He is now a strong, robust man, weighing 240 pounds, and declares that he owes his life to Professor Samuels, which is unquestionably true.

The case of Mr. C. C. Miller, residing near Hutchinson, Kas., who for years had suffered untold agony from hemorrhage of the kidneys and various complications of that dire malady, is another example of the almost miraculous results of Professor Samuels' strange treatment. Mr. Miller in his testimonial states that he had tried every remedy suggested by his medical advisers without obtaining relief, and at last, hearing of Professor Samuels' wonderful cures, decided to take his treatment. At that time he was in a deplorably enfeebled and emaciated condition, weighing only 118 pounds, and was almost without hope. Six months after beginning the treatment he was absolutely restored to health, weighed 155 pounds and has had no recurrence of his trouble. Mr. Miller has lived in the vicinity of Hutchinson since 1877, is a man of high integrity, and his endorsement of Professor Samuels' method of cure should be regarded as the strongest kind of proof of its merit and reliability. In fact the greater number of the professor's patients are of a class whose testimony cannot be discounted, and perhaps this has been one of the main reasons why his fame has spread so rapidly and brought so many of the afflicted to his office for treatment.

Mr. George Hartman, living at 211 North Meridian street, Wichita, Kas., in his testimonial states he had what some physicians pronounced Bright's disease and others called diabetes. Various doctors—among them his family physician—had given him up to die. He was so weak he could hardly walk. About this time he heard of Professor Samuels and placed himself in Professor Samuels' care, and showed change for the better in a few weeks. He states that at the end of ten months he felt just as well as he ever did, and claims he is absolutely cured and has never had a recurrence of the trouble.

Mrs. T. J. Williamson, who resides at 200 B street West, Hutchinson, Kas., in her testimonial states she was almost on the verge of the grave with consumption and nervous trouble, and that for nearly twenty-two years she was seriously afflicted with St. Vitus' dance in addition to tuberculosis. She states that a leading physician had pronounced her incurable, and that she would die and be buried with the falling of the leaves in autumn. As a last resort she turned to Professor Samuels, and after starting his treatment she says she had only one hemorrhage of the lungs and began to improve. In a short time, she states, she was able to do her own work, and that she recently had her lungs examined by a doctor, who pronounced them absolutely sound and well.

Mrs. H. J. Burroughs, living at Collins, Ia., and who in her testimonial said she had a serious case of heart trouble, in a recent letter to Professor Samuels, states: "I have not taken a drop of medicine since I began your treatment. Before that I had to take from one to four heart tablets a day. I had dizzy, blind spells, and my heart did not beat regularly at all, but just flutter. Now it beats regularly and does not bother me a bit. I tell everyone I talk with of your treatment and what it has done for me."

Mr. C. W. Neel, living at Broken Arrow, Okla., in his testimonial says he had a very bad case of rheumatism. Writing Professor Samuels in a recent letter he states as follows: "Thank you, Professor, ten thousand times for your assistance in curing me of that awful rheumatism. I am still hard at work and feeling fine."

Miss Daisy Hubbard, who lives at Alva, Okla., in a recent letter wrote: "For fifteen years I have been subject to epilepsy, and have received treatment from several noted doctors and have failed to receive permanent good." As a last resort she began treatment from Professor Samuels, and now in her testimonial says she has no symptoms of the disease.

Mrs. Louisa Lockhart, living at Washington, Kas., in her testimonial says she had a very bad case of kidney and bladder trouble. She had reached the point where her kidneys and bladder were in an awful condition. In a recent letter to Professor Samuels she states: "After taking your treatment two weeks I was able to do my own housework, which I had not done for months. I took the treatment one month and now I am well in every respect, thanks to your wonderful treatment."

If space permitted, this record of wonderful results might be prolonged indefinitely, for there are hundreds of people throughout the country who have had precisely the same gratifying experiences as those we have referred to. All kinds of constitutional and chronic diseases, hay fever, asthma, catarrh, cataracts, etc., are just as successfully treated as consumption, epilepsy, Bright's disease, and the more important maladies that confound and baffle our wisest medical men. Professor Samuels' treatment is unquestionably the new Source of Hope; and, what is more, it is available to all classes of people who may be menaced by any of these deadly diseases from which the ordinary practitioner cannot rescue them. Professor Samuels is a humanitarian as well as a gifted scientist, and has kept his charges within the reach of every man and woman who may need his treatment; and if any reader of this journal is in need of his counsels, or has lost faith in the methods of treatment employed by the less progressive medical fraternity, it will be the part of wisdom for them to get in touch with this great scientist—the one man in the whole world who has proven by his marvelous success that he can bring health and strength to many sufferers whom the doctors are powerless to help. Those who are unable to visit his office, Suite 39, Samuels Building, in Wichita, Kas., should write him for his "Message of Facts," relative to his wonderful treatment. They can rest assured that his treatment will be administered in the same manner as if they were under personal treatment.

One thing is certain: Professor Samuels has originated a wonderful treatment—one that has been proven to possess absolute merit; and his unselfishness in placing it within reach of afflicted humanity, when he might command almost fabulous prices for his treatment, is to be commended in the highest terms.—Advt.

JEFF WILL MEET JOHNSON AGAIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 4.—"Jeffries and Johnson will fight again. It may be soon and it may be a year from now, but some time, some place, they will get together again. And when they do Jeffries will go into the ring carrying a load of money."

So declares Tex Rickard, the man who promoted the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno, and some time next week will meet Jeffries at Los Angeles to talk over staging him and Johnson in a return match.

Reports from Los Angeles that Jeffries positively would not consider a fight with the black champion failed to check Rickard's optimism.

"Jeffries will fight all right," said Rickard. "I had hoped to see him myself before he told me last Fall, when we went fishing together. I know we can get his consent. tA that time Jeffries said he wanted to fight Johnson in private—that he knew he was the better man."

Rickard said that Clarence Heney and Frank Barry of Los Angeles, who lost heavily on Jeffries at Reno, will bet $100,000 that Jeffries will win if ever he fights Johnson again.

Frank Barry will be associated with Rickard if the match is consummated. Rickard said Barry was behind the guarantee of a $80,000 purse which he was prepared to offer for the match.

Sam Berger, Jeffries former manager, said:

"I don't know that Jeffries will or will not fight again, but you know a great fighter likes to show that he can do better. So it is with Jeffries. Deep down in his heart he would like to restore himself not only in the estimation of the public, but in his own. I would not be surprised to see him fight Johnson a second time if the public wants him to. If he does he will put up a vastly better fight than he did at Reno.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

BY G. RILEY

ANDREW G. LEONARD, THE NOTED turf critic, suggests a race between Uhlan (1:58¾), The Harvester (2:01) and Joan (2:04¾), to wagon, with amateur drivers. He points out that as C. K. G. Billings, the owner of Uhlan, never races his horses professionally, that this is the only manner in which a race between the great trotters might be arranged. He says gests that Billings have the mount behind Uhlan, Frank G. Jones hold the ribbons over The Harvester and that Harry K. Devereaux be the pilot of Joan. Such a race would prove unquestionably the greatest amateur event of the kind ever decided, and would render the light harness sport a tremendous as well as a lasting benefit. The greatest amateur event of turf history, the day that John A. McKerron (2:04½), defeated Lord Derby (2:05¾), and The Monk (2:05¾), would seem tame in comparison.

JOHN IRWIN HAS RETURNED FROM New York and tells me that this fellow, Otis Johnson, whom the New York Highlanders will try at short field, should develop the goods, if the opinion of old-time ball players is any criterion. John met Jack Ryan, the old Melrose boy, who now lives in Jersey City and pilots the Skeeters, and under whom Johnson played last year. Ryan predicts great things for the Highlanders' new infielder. Ryan, who played here with the Boston Nationals back in 1895, has proved a great success as an Eastern League leader, and desired to be remembered to his many friends in Boston.

THE GOOD NEWS COMES FROM Albany that Charley White, the emperor of all boxing referees, is making rapid progress towards a complete recovery after a critical surgical operation. Charley has never had a superior as an arbiter of boxing, and one of his longest suits has been the fact that he would never consent to referee any bout in which a decision was not to be rendered to the better man. There has never been any of "the draw if both men are on their feet" game that Charley would stand for in all his long and honored career as third man in the ring.

SAILOR BURKE EXPLAINS HIS knockout at the hands of Kid Henry at Albany the other night as follows: "That guy didn't knock me out at all. My foot happened to kick his in a mix and I went down on my head to the floor and couldn't get up." The jolly tar was reminded that he was down earlier in the fight from a punch, but he explained this by saying that the ring was wet in spots and he slipped.

IT IS INDEED SURPRISING THAT any one should be able to come across with the ancient trick of dealing four aces and a royal flush in two pitch hands, and then swapping the game of cards, to poker. The ruse is surely the oldest of all wrinkles at cards and antedates even the "shifting of the cut." It is reported to have been first tried up on the opening fig leaf wash-day upon the ark, when Noah retired to his cabin to begin his magazine articles, and how anybody could be found in Boston, with the aid of a search lantern, to fall for such a motheaten device, is a mystery to even the most scientific. The victim of such a game should look in his vest pocket and be sure that he has no Confederate bills upon what is left of his roll. Back in 1885, when we started out very modestly at Pimlico, we saw a fat and forty player, ducked in a trough for trying to put over this mediaeval wrinkle.

IT WILL BE SOME CLOUTING CONtest when Tommy Furey, the Attleboro 138-pounder, clashes with Kid Burns, one of the best of New York welterweights, down at Taunton next week. We shall want to be sure of a ringside seat, for the match is one of the best at the weight arranged in New England for many a day. Burns is the boy who recently met Young Donohue of Roxbury, and is a very sweet walloper. He has defeated "Fighting Joe" Hyland three times, and also shown his superiority over Johnny Marto and Harry Scroggs. The distance is understood to be fifteen rounds.

THE RUNNING HORSE HAS ENCOUNtered about everything in the way of opposition upon this side of the water, but a Mexican insurrection is a new wrinkle. The hold-up of racing at Juarez will severely handicap the poolrooms all over the country and the hand-book men as well. A million American dollars are invested in the race track at Juarez, and the largest owner is said to be James Butler of New York, the millionaire turfman. The shutting down of the sport in Mexico comes very hard upon the owners who are at Oakland, where the law rings down the curtain February 15, and who were all ready to ship their horses to the Mexican border town.

OF THE SEVERAL SUGGESTIONS for improving the game of football, the plan to reduce the distance to be gained in four downs, from ten to seven yards, appears to strike nearest the real heart of things. Other ideas of embryo football reformers were to make all tries for goals after a touchdown from behind a scrimmage formation; to limit all forward passes so that the play should only be started from a point well behind the line of scrimmage; to return to the rule of dividing the game into two periods; and to compel all players to wear identifying numbers.

EDDIE GRANT, THE FRANKLIN BOY, downtown barrister in Winter and swell third sacker of the National League in Summer, continues to withhold his signature to a Cincinnati contract. Eddie says that everything is sweet and serene, but that he is taking his time in affixing his John Hancock to a Porktown contract. He surely is. If you don't believe it ask Clarke Griffith and the owners of the Cincinnati team.

WILLIAM WARREN BARBOUR, THE society person who has taken up fisticuffs as a hobby, is no boob, men, believe us. If the white hopes around the country showed as much class as the amateur champion Barbour has up to date, we really would have some hope. It's a good bet now that, with the exception of Kaufman, Barbour could beat—or at least hold his own—with any of them.

THIS SURELY IS THE SILLY SEASON for the publicity seeking fighters, and Jack Johnson is taking the leading role in the act of fooling the public, but is misleading no one but himself. It's a rare day indeed when Jack is not matched to fight some one, and the next day is not a Johnson day at all if the match is not called off.

BIG CHIEF MYERS DROPPED IN FOR a chat yesterday afternoon and incidentally said that because of the Massachusetts laws, he and Matty won't be allowed to throw the ball Sunday. It now appears that instead of throwing the ball, the baseball-player-actors will have to throw the bull.

NEWPORT KEEPS BIG TENNIS TOURNAMENT

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Newport, R. I., was retained as the national tournament field by the United States National Lawn Tennis Association at its meeting here. The "insurgents" who sought to have the tournament transferred to Philadelphia were defeated by a vote of ninety-five to sixty.

The principal officers of the association were re-elected. Dr. James Dwight of Boston became president of the association for the twentieth time, but in accepting he said it must be regarded as his last year, as he had held office for twenty-nine years altogether. Robert D. Wrenn, New York, was elected vice-president, Richard Stevens of Hoboken, N. J., treasurer, and A. L. Hoskins of Philadelphia secretary.

BALDWIN AND MOORE IN SHAPE FOR BOUT

Matty Baldwin and Pal Moore, two fast lightweights, who think they can defeat champion Ad Wolgast, clash in a twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night. The bout will decide which has the better right to seek a meeting with the champion. Manager McLean has Baldwin in the best of shape. Jimmy DeForest, Moore's manager, writes that his boy's ankle will be all well by that time, and that Moore will show his old speed and cleverness.

CROWLEY TALKS ON GRAY'S DEALS

President T. D. Crowley of the Providence Baseball Club, talked very freely at his office in this city, to-day, regarding the sharp practice of Chester Chadbourne, the former Red Sox outfielder, who signed a contract with the Providence Club, claiming to be a free agent, when as a matter of fact the Maine player was awaiting the award of the National Association for the coming year.

"Chadbourne appears lost to us," said Crowley, "although we signed him to a regular contract, believing him to be a free agent as he claimed, and now comes his award to Portland of the Pacific Coast League. No, we shall not contest the matter, but go after another outfielder. He hit very well for us before when he was with Lord and McConnell upon our team, and I believe he would have had another good year with us."

In the matter of the award of $90.35 to Elmer Steele, formerly of the Red Sox, in the controversy between the player and the Providence Club, President Crowley said: "It surely doesn't look as if the minor league owners were getting any the best of matters. Steele was sick for five weeks of the playing season, and we not only paid him a full salary, but all his doctor's bills as well. He was given permission to join the Pittsburg Club of the National League, and we supposed our liability to the player then ceased. We surely have received none the best of matters."

COMMERCE ELEVEN GETS HAVERHILL DATE

For years Haverhill and Lawrence High School always met on the gridiron on Thanksgiving Day, but athletic relations between the two were severed several weeks ago and the local school was taken on. High School of Commerce will go to Haverhill under the agreement for $100 and expenses.

CHAMPION MARSHALL WINS CHESS TOURNEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—By half a point Frank J. Marshall, already champion of the United States, won the national chess masters' tournament. His final game was a draw with Kreymborg, but this left him with the remarkably good score of 10 points out of a possible 12, or eight victories and four drawn games. As at the Cambridge Springs and Nuremburg tournaments Marshall did not lose a game.

'STAND PAT' ON FOOTBALL RULES

The gridiron game, as it will be played next Fall, will be practically the same as last year. The football rules committee which met at the Hotel Cumberland, New York, decided on a few minor changes, but stood pat on the game as played last season.

The committee let the much-discussed forward pass alone, as far as its execution was concerned, although the penalties for it were tinkered with. The same was true of the on-side kick.

The changes decided upon are as follows:

1. The intermission between the first and second and the third and fourth periods shall be two minutes instead of three.
2. Teams will be permitted, by agreement, to transfer the supervision of off-side play in the line of scrimmage from the umpire to the head linesman, the latter, however, to report the infraction to the umpire.
3. That the throwing to the ground of the player carrying the ball after the referee has declared the ball "dead" may be deemed "unnecessary roughness," and penalized as such.
4. That only three men shall be allowed to walk up and down the side lines on each side, instead of five men as heretofore.
5. That if the ball accidentally strikes an official the ball shall not be declared "dead," as heretofore, but the play shall continue.
6. That all penalties under the rules regulating forward passing shall be applied from the spot of the down and not from the spot from which the pass was made.
7. That the duty of time keeping shall be transferred from the field judge to the umpire.
8. That in Rule 18, Section 2, which provides that a player in catching a forward pass shall not be tackled or shouldered until he has caught the ball and taken more than one step in any direction, the words "and taken more than one step in any direction" shall be stricken out.

RED SOX MARK TIME FOR ORDER 'GO WEST'

The Red Sox are "marking time," waiting for the order from President John I. Taylor to start on that swell trip across the continent to sunny California.

Everybody, with the exception of "Bill" Carrigan, is ready to step aboard the Red Sox special, which is going to whirl the Boston baseball players across some few thousands of miles of land. And it would not be very much of a surprise to Boston fans if Bill was to step into President Taylor's offices when he came down here to see the B. A. A. games, a week from to-day, and come across with his signature to a contract. The wise laddies say it is a good bet that Bill will hold down one of those roomy Pullman chairs on the trip.

The Eastern contingent of the Red Sox special will leave Boston at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of February 18. Reference to the calendar shows that the get-away day is Saturday. In New York the party will pick up a few stragglers. Then it will be Windy City way.

The Red Sox are due to hit Chicago at 9:45 a. m. on February 20. They will put up at the Great Northern Hotel, leaving that same night for the Coast. The trip will be over the Southern route, and training camp at Redondo Beach will be reached at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of February 23. The reception the Coast fans are planning for the Boston players will put it over that which they gave Comiskey's men; yes, put it over by a mile.

Many Hard Games Booked.

The official schedule for the Pacific Coast training trip of the Red Sox, as announced by Impressario Tip O'Neill, who is acting as advance manager for John I. Taylor, in California, shows that the Boston players will have a busy time of it.

The Boston-American special is due in California about February 24, and on arrival there will split into northern and southern divisions. The northern division will immediately start preliminary training somewhere near San Francisco, and the second squad will journey southward and take up preparation quarters near Los Angeles.

Each division will open its schedule on Thursday, March 2, the Northerners with Oakland at Freeman's Park, and the Southerners with Los Angeles.

The first game with the Seals will be played on Friday, March 3, at Recreation Park. Boston and San Francisco will also meet on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, with a Sunday morning game between the Red Sox and the Oaks at Freeman's Park.

Will Play College Nine.

On Monday, March 6, the Red Sox will play the St. Mary Phoenix team at Oakland and then jump to Sacramento for two games against the Western Senators on Tuesday and Wednesday. For the rest of that week the same schedule as the week previous will be carried out against Oakland and San Francisco.

After the game on Sunday, March 12, the northern division will start south and the southern division will work its way toward San Francisco, opening up with Oakland on March 16 and pursuing the same schedule as did the other squad, with the exception that a game will be played at Santa Clara College instead of St. Mary.

Boston will close its California season on Sunday, March 26. The southern division will start back East by way of Reno and the northern division by the Southern route.

Here is the schedule of games to be played by both divisions of the Red Sox:

NORTHERN DIVISION.

March 2, Oakland; 3, 4, San Francisco; 5, Oakland (a.m.), San Francisco; 6, St. Mary's College; 7, 8, Sacramento; 9, Oakland; 10, 11, San Francisco; 12, Oakland (a.m.), San Francisco; 13, Modesto; 14, Hanford; 15, Bakersfield; 16, 17, 18, 19, Vernon; 20, 21, 22, open; 23, 24, 25, 26, Los Angeles; 27, Yuma; 28, open; 29, Abilene; 30, Dallas; 31, Ft. Worth; April 1, Oklahoma; April 2, 3, Wichita; 4, 5, Topeka; 6, 7, St. Joseph; 8, 9, Kansas City.

SOUTHERN DIVISION.

March 2, 3, 4, 5, Los Angeles; 6, Redlands; 7, open; 8, Whittier; 9, 10, 11, 12, Vernon; 13, Ventura; 14, Santa Maria; 15, open; 16, Oakland; 17, 18, San Francisco; 19, Oakland (a.m.), San Francisco; 20, Santa Clara College; 21, 22, Sacramento; 23, Oakland; 24, 25, San Francisco; 26, Oakland (a.m.), San Francisco; 21, University of Nevada, Reno; 28, Ogden; 29, Salt Lake City; 30, open; 31, Pueblo; April 1, 2, 3, Denver; 4, 5, Lincoln; 6, 7, Sioux City; 8, 9, Omaha.

Business Success Through Publicity

No. 41

Brick Versus Concrete

An industry comprising many independent producers has often lost business through its failure to grasp the advantages of advertising. In one particular instance nothing was done for so long that it cost the industry thousands upon thousands of dollars in the loss of orders.

The industry referred to is the production of bricks. Some years ago an enterprising firm seeing the wide uses of cement started to educate the American public to its desirability. It talked cement constantly, showed the different uses of cement, sent out booklets and salesmen to follow up its advertising and soon a nation awoke to the concrete block, to concrete stone, and to the great advantage of cement in the form of concrete for heavy construction, as well as for use in the building of individual houses.

After a time other producers of concrete and concrete machinery took up the story. They used all sorts of advertising mediums and little by little the use of brick decreased and that of concrete increased.

At last the brick producers faced the situation of a big financial loss. They had been asleep and the cement makers had stolen a march on them. Now the brick people are waking up and they are advertising. Suppose they were to advertise in local papers wherever there was a brick yard and that advertising was followed up with educational booklets, showing the cost of brick, its durability, its fireproof qualities, and the most interesting features that are true of brick. Newspaper advertising would do more to offset the inroads upon the brick industry than any other form of advertising. And the best form of newspaper advertising is that in the papers of largest circulation. The papers which reach the masses as well as the classes can help an industry to recover from competition quicker than anything else. But the advertising must be persistent and it must be well followed up.

The Boston American presents to the Brick Manufacturers' Association an opportunity in the New England field to reach 400,000 readers every day. Go out on any train or any car in the evening and you will find the majority of readers have a copy of the American.

Who's Who IN BASKETBALL

"BILL" PARKS—No. 27.

Played forward on the high school five for two years; also good foot ball player, playing quarterback on the squad for three years. Fast sprinter. Beat Charley Brickley in a sprint race on the Everett High School field. Member of the Somerville Athletic Association and of the Somerville Y. M. C. A. Well liked by his team mates and strong defender of clean sport.

PHILLY FIGHTER BEATS DONOHUE

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—Young Donohue of Boston was outclassed by George Griffin of Philadelphia in the windup bout at the Nonpariel A. C.

Donohue, however, kept Griffin on the jump and the latter's cleverness proved a big asset in jabbing his opponent and then getting out of the way before Donahue could whip over his walloping left.

Although there was action all the time, Griffin had hardly a mark on him when he left the ring, while Donohue's eye was put in mourning in the early part of the bout.

Griffin staggered his man just before the bell with a hard right on the jaw, but Donohue kept his feet and managed to stay until the end. It was a great go.

MORRIS AND THOMAS BATTLE AT PORTLAND

Andy Morris of East Boston clashes with Joe Thomas at the Auditorium in Portland to-night. Both boxers are confident of winning. Thomas is more skillful, but what Andy lacks in skill he makes up in aggressiveness. Furthermore he is in good shape. The contest should be one of the most spectacular ever staged in Portland. A clever man opposed to a forceful boxer always produces a satisfactory battle. With the preliminary bill that Manager Bartly Connolly has arranged there will be ample action for the Forest City fans.

TOMMY QUILL SUED BY FORMER TRAINER

BROCKTON, Feb. 4.—Tommy Quill, Brockton's welterweight boxer, now under the management of Billy Pierce of Boston, has been sued by his former trainer, John Edwards, for $264, charged for services as trainer. The writ is returnable in the police court February 11. Officers of the Shoe City A. C. may be summoned as witnesses to show what financial arrangement was made between the club and Quill Thursday, when Quill appeared.

Edwards came to this city last August, he claims, and remained as Quill's trainer until January 9. He then left Quill and is now training Hayward Briggs, Quill's opponent in a bout here Thursday night.

BEAUTY, LOVE AND LUCK—The sad romance of the three most beautiful sisters in America will be told in the Sunday AMERICAN.

SMITH GIVES LEACH CROSS HARD WHIPPING

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Sammy Smith, a Philadelphia lightweight, outfought Leach Cross of New York in all except one of ten rounds at the Empire athletic club. In the second round the East Side dentist showed to advantage, but all the others were Smith's.

Cross, with a left to the face, knocked Smith off his feet in the first round, but the Quaker was up quickly. He proved too fast and too strong for Cross, and gave him the hardest walloping he has received since he was trounced by Packey McFarland.

SULLIVAN MAY TAKE ON HOOSIER FIGHTER

Tommy Sullivan of Lawrence has received an offer to box Jack Morgan in Indianapolis in two weeks. The Lawrence boy will accept, providing he wins from Bill McKinnon at Manchester next Wednesday night. Johnny Gallant and Jerry Moskill, in the opening numbers, have been working with Sullivan and both are in great shape. Gallant is training with Matty Baldwin at Highland Lake.

"HACK" AGAIN VICTOR.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—George Hackenschmidt, the Russian wrestler, won from Gus Schoenlin (American) in straight falls here. The first fall came in 1h. 20m. 30s. and the second in 38m. 15s.

GIANTS-WHITE SOX IN SERIES

Hugh Duffy is considering plans for what should prove the greatest preliminary series of the coming baseball season in the matching of his Chicago White Sox against the New York Giants in Texas.

Mineral Wells, the training grounds where Hughy will put his charges through their Spring course in sprouts, is but seventy-five miles from the Giants' hibernating point at Marlin Springs. A series of games between the teams would give the fans some good dope in advance of the regular season.

The interest in the proposed series is largely the result of the promised meeting of Ed Walsh and Christy Mathewson, generally considered the greatest pitchers now in the baseball arena, in one game of the series, which will be either of three or five games.

Ted Sullivan, scout of the White Sox, it is reported, had a conference with Hughy as to this series. This was one of the chief objects of his recent visit to Boston.

A meeting between Walsh and Mathewson would create tremendous interest in every part of the country among baseball fans, and their clash would be as widely heralded as almost any game of the coming season. A test between these masters of the mound has always been one of the things in baseball that the fans have most desired to see.

CONCEAL IDENTITY OF SCORERS IS NEW PLAN

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 4.—The identity of American League official scorers hereafter will be known only to league officials, club owners and the scorers themselves, if the owners take kindly to the suggestion when made by President Johnson at the meeting of the league here on February 14. The matter will be put up to the magnates by Mr. Johnson who said to-day that he favored the move. The same suggestion has been made by Secretary Heydler of the National League, and may be acted upon at the same time by the veteran organization in New York.

TWO PITCHERS SIGN WITH BROCKTON CLUB

Manager Flanagan of the Brockton nine has purchased Pitcher Arthur Mayhohm from Lawrence. Mayhohm was with Brockton in 1909 for awhile, being purchased at that time with an option for repurchase at the end of the season.

Pitcher Joseph Weafer of Morrisville, Vt., has also been signed upon recommendation of Ray Collins of the Boston Americans.

PICK YALE RELAY QUARTET NEXT WEEK

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Feb. 4.—Coach John Mack of the Yale track team said to-day that the varsity relay team which will meet Harvard in the B. A. A. games next week Saturday will not be picked till early next week, when trials will be run in the Yale gym. The quartet, however, will be picked from the following runners: Reed, Tilson, Seymour, May, Tuttle, Connelly and Boyd.

BOWLING ALLEY NEWS

In the first fifteen strings of thirty in the match between G. Bazata, Jr., of Westfield and Joseph Sharkey of North Adams for $50 in gold the score was 1,546 to 1,449 in favor of the former. This block was decided in Westfield. The remaining block will be bowled next Wednesday in North Adams.

The Natick bowling alleys have changed hands. Pete Fair has sold out to P. J. Welsch of Lowell. The new owner has decided to make the alleys the fastest in the State. Weekly prizes are now given to the three bowlers who roll the highest single strings. Mr. Welsch is going to boom bowling locally.

C. M. Goodnow is touring the western part of the State with Walsh, Brown, Armstrong and Poehler included in the team. The title is Goodnow's Pets. In the match with Westfield Club the Pets won by 1,493 to 1,362. Walsh was high man with 334. The other Pets to go over 300 were Armstrong with 315 and Poehler with 313.

Dan Corcoran of Miah Murray's alleys says that about half of the patrons call him Walter Kirk, thinking he is the former manager. Corcoran has completed two more of his unique candlepins and ball chairs. They are very popular with the amateur class.

Charlie Brooks, last year's champion bowler of Natick, dropped into the Natick alleys recently and rolled a three-string total of 351. Charley sure doesn't belong to that "can't come back" bunch.

John Toohey has organized the M'ah Murray Juniors, and wants games with other junior teams in Greater Boston. As Toohey is only fifty-five years of age, he fits first rate in the junior class.

The family upstairs may get "Dingbat's" goat, but the "Dingbats" of East Boston put it over the Goofs of the same place. Out of twenty strings they won eighteen. Goin' some!

The first four teams in the Chelsea Trade League are having a red-hot race for first honors. The teams are P. O. Clerks, Cabots, Biplanes and Conductors.

Coleman of Biplanes is leading the bowlers in individual average with 97 pins. Bushell of Forbes and Cary of Cabots are pressing him very closely, however.

Emory of Conductors has been rolling for the last four games at an average of over 100. His totals read 306, 312, 328, 336.

Quinlan and Healey of Cabot Company are rolling in mid-Winter form. Every week it is 290 or better.

Captain Tom Woods of Mason Machine claims they will be in near the top at the finish of the league.

The Osgood Bros. of Shoe Workers are making [illegible]. Both have a 93 average.

HARVARD SEVEN IN NEW LINE-UP

The Line-up

HARVARD.		DARTMOUTH.
Childs, f.		f., Wells
Duncan, f.		f., S. Eaton
Huntington, f.		f., Stecklen
Seaman, f.		f., F. Eaton
Foster, cp.		cp., Patten
Blackall, p.		p., Ballard
Chadwick, g.		g., Nault

By E. V. B. PARKE.

The Harvard hockey seven plays its fourth game in the Intercollegiate League hockey championship series at the Arena to-night, having as its opponent the Dartmouth aggregation, which has rounded into a very formidable team.

Harvard will present to the Hanoverians a lineup entirely different from any which it has put on the ice this season. The change has been made necessary by the injuries to Captain Hornblower and Leslie, two of the best forwards on the Crimson team. Hornblower received a broken cheek bone in the game against Cornell Saturday. He will be unable to play again this season. Leslie will not have recovered from the injury to his knee much before the game with Yale.

The change in the lineup is the shifting of Huntington, the strongest player in the Harvard defense, to forward, while Childs, one of the sub forwards, will take the place of Leslie.

With Huntington in the fore Harvard should prove fairly strong and not much weakened by the loss of Hornblower. Huntington has proved himself a very versatile player and a man capable of playing almost any position. Frequently he has emerged from the defence and skated the length of the rink through his opponents' team for a neat score. His stick work and passing is good, while he is undoubtedly the best skater on the team.

Foster will take Huntington's place at cover, and should give a good account of himself, while Blackall, Foster's sub, will go in at point. It has been a close race between the two this year, and the defence should not be weakened in any appreciable degree.

AL. SHRUBB ADDS TWO RECORDS TO HIS LIST

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4.—Alfred Shrubb of England broke two professional running records in his race here, it was announced to-day. He made ten miles in 52m. 5s., beating the professional indoor record by 20 seconds. His time for the 15 miles was 1h. 19m. 15s.

The professional outdoor record was announced as 1h. 20m. 4 3-5s. Shrubb ran against St. Yves of France and John Hayes of New York. He finished 3½ laps on the eight-lap track ahead of the former, who was second.

DUFRESNE AND STEVE KENNEDY FIGHT DRAW

LEWISTON, Me., Feb. 4.—Napoleon Dufresne of this city and Steve Kennedy of Lawrence fought two fast six-round bouts to a draw before the Twin City Athletic club in City Hall.

While Kennedy, who scored a knockout on Dufresne at Lawrence a fortnight ago, rather excelled in the bouts here, at no time was Napoleon in apparent danger, as he played a cautious game. There were frequent clinches and much infighting.

HOCKEY TEAM NOTES

Milton Academy has hung up a school hockey record that should stand for some time. In the five games that they have participated in this season they have scored fifty-one points and have not been scored upon by any school team. They were defeated once by the Harvard freshmen.

Captain Fitts of the Rindge M. T. S. seven got back into the game after a short layoff with a great rush. He played his first game for quite a while against the Boston English High team and scored five goals. Fitts and Clarence Wannamaker would make a great pair.

Captain Osgood of the Arlington High hockey team claims that the defeat of his team by Melrose was due to the absence of Hadley, who was ineligible on account of low scholarship. Hadley has been playing a fine game all year at [illegible] and his absence from the game slowed Arlington's offence and team work, which has been a feature of the team's success.

"Heavy" Bauer, who replaced Hadley, played a fine defensive game for a small fellow and seemed to be able to intercept Melrose's passes at will. He is a very small fellow and with more experience should develop into a fine [illegible] as he is fast and can skate well.

PITTSBURG PUTS A BAN ON WRESTLING

PITTSBURG, Feb. 4.—Safety Director John M. Morin announced to-day that there would be no more wrestling permits granted for Pittsburg unless he was assured that they provided for bona fide contests and not for exhibitions under the guise of matches.

WELSH BALKS AT GO WITH PACKEY

According to Mr. Frederick Welsh's letters you'd think that he was simply daffy to get on with McFarland again, but from other sources we find that such is not exactly the case.

A prominent London sport, when interviewed the other day, on the subject had this to say, according to Sporting Life:

"What I want the public to understand is this: On the one hand we have McFarland accepting the weight question of 133 pounds, the date, the referee, the place of meeting and the consideration of two-thirds less than Welsh demanded.

"On the other hand, we have Welsh who declines the weight he would fight at, demanding three times more than his opponent would have been prepared to accept and, in addition, wanting to appoint the referee.

"And in order to avoid this meeting he objects to a gentleman whose very name the sporting world over is a guarantee of fair play and sportsmanship. And without any rhyme or reason he also insults this gentleman by objecting in the public prints to his officiating at a contest of this description, which, after all, is one of minor importance to contests already listed.

"It is not fitting that in order to evade the direct issue, the name of a true sportsman should have been used to such an end. Mr. Corri's name has been most unjustifiably and unwarrantably used in connection with this matter. He is not a professional referee, but solely for his love of sport gives his very valuable and capable services. To my mind Mr. Corri is one of the best referees in the world, and it would have been conferring an honor on Welsh if he (Mr. Corri) had consented to act.

"These are the true facts, which can be borne out by our clubs and athletes, and the public can form their own opinion whether Welsh is as really anxious to meet McFarland again as he declared himself to be."

The Mystery of the "Villa Rose"

WE strongly urge every reader of the AMERICAN to take advantage of the publication of "The Mystery of the 'Villa Rose,'" in these columns by beginning this great mystery story with this first installment and by reading every chapter, for it is a story worth while. Indeed, it is doubtful if so notable a story by a modern author was ever before printed in a daily newspaper.

"The Mystery of the 'Villa Rose'" is no ordinary detective story, even though it records the efforts of a detective to solve a seemingly baffling mystery and his ultimate success. It is a study of motives and of character, as well as of clues, and the persons about whom the plot revolves are drawn in masterly fashion.

The author, A. E. W. Mason, has won a place in the front rank of English writers of to-day and "The Mystery of the 'Villa Rose'" is his latest and greatest book.

CHAPTER I.

Summer Lightning.

IT was Mr. Ricardo's habit as soon as the second week of August came around to travel to Aix-les-Bains, in Savoy, where, for five or six weeks he lived pleasantly. He pretended to take the waters in the morning, he went for a ride in his motorcar in the afternoon, he dined at the Cercle in the evening, and spent an hour or two afterwards in the baccarat-rooms at the Villa des Fleurs.

An enviable smooth life without a doubt, and it is certain that his acquaintances envied him. At the same time, however, they laughed at him and, alas with some justice; for he was an exaggerated person. He was to be construed in the comparative. Everything in his life was a trifle overdone, from the fastidious arrangement of his neckties to the feminine nicety of his little dinner parties.

In age Mr. Ricardo was approaching the fifties; in condition he was a widower—a state greatly to his liking, for he avoided at once the irksomeness of marriage and the reproaches justly leveled at the bachelor; finally, he was rich, having amassed a fortune in Mincing Lane, which he had invested in profitable securities.

His Business Look

Ten years of ease, however, had not altogether obliterated in him the business look. Though he lounged from January to December, he lounged with the air of a financier taking a holiday; and when he visited, as he frequently did, the studio of a painter, a stranger would have hesitated to decide whether he had been drawn thither by a love of art or by the possibility of an investment.

His "acquaintances" have been mentioned, and the word is suitable. For while he mingled in many circles he stood aloof from all. He affected the company of artists, by whom he was regarded as one ambitious to become a connoisseur; and among the younger business men, who had never dealt with him, he earned the disrespect reserved for the dilettante.

If he had a grief, it was that he had discovered no great man who in return for practical favors would engrave his memory in brass. He was a Maecenas without a Horace, an Earl of Southampton without a Shakespeare.

In His Proper Place

In a word, Aix-les-Bains in the season was the very place for him; and never for a moment did it occur to him that he was here to be dipped in agitations, and hurried from excitement to excitement. The beauty of the little town, the crowd of well dressed and agreeable people, the rose-colored life of the place, all made their appeal to him. But it was the Villa des Fleurs which brought him to Aix. Not that he played for anything more than an occasional louis; nor, on the other hand, was he merely a cold looker-on.

He had a bank note or two in his pocket on most evenings at the service of the victims of the tables. But the pleasure to his curious and dilettante mind lay in the spectacle of the battle which was wageted night after night between raw nature and good manners. It was extraordinary to him how constantly manners prevailed. There were, however, exceptions.

One of the Exceptions

For instance. On the first evening of this particular visit he found the rooms hot, and sauntered out into the little semicircle garden at the back.

He sat there for half an hour under a flawless sky of stars watching the people come and go in the light of the electric lamps, and appreciating the gowns and jewels of the women with the eye of a connoisseur; and then into this starlit quiet there came suddenly a flash of vivid life. A girl in a soft, clinging frock of white satin, darted swiftly from the rooms and flung herself nervously upon a bench.

She could not, to Ricardo's thinking, be more than twenty years of age. She was certainly quite young. The supple slenderness of her figure proved it, and he had moreover caught a glimpse, as she rushed out, of a fresh and very pretty face; but he had lost sight of it now. For the girl wore a big black satin hat with a broad brim, from which a couple of white ostrich feathers curved over at the back, and in the shadow of that hat her face was masked.

All that he could see was a pair of long diamond eardrops, which sparkled and trembled as she moved her head—and that she did constantly.

On the Verge of Hysteria

Now she stared moodily at the ground; now she flung herself back; then she twisted nervously to the right, and then a moment afterward to the left; and then again she stared in front of her, swinging a satin slipper backward and forward against the pavement with the petulance of a child. All her movements were spasmodic; she was on the verge of hysteria.

Ricardo was expecting her to burst into tears, when she sprang up, and as swiftly as she had come she hurried back into the rooms. "Summer lightning," thought Mr. Ricardo.

Near to him a woman sneered, and a man said pityingly. "She was pretty, that little one. It is regrettable that she has lost."

A few minutes afterward Ricardo finished is cigar and strolled back into the rooms, making his way to the big table just on the right hand of the entrance, where the play, as a rule, runs high. It was clearly running high to-night. For so deep a crowd thronged about the table that Ricardo could only, by standing on tiptoe, see the faces of the players. Of the banker he could not catch a glimpse.

But though the crowd remained, its units were constantly changing, and it was not long before Ricardo found himself standing in the front rank of the spectators, just behind the players seated in the chairs. The oval green table was spread out beneath him littered with bank notes. Ricardo turned his eyes to the left, and saw seated at the middle of the table the man who was holding the bank. Ricardo recognized him with a start of surprise. He was a young Englishman, Harry Wethermill, who, after a brilliant career at Oxford and at Munich, had so turned his scientific genius to account that he had made a fortune for himself at the age of twenty-eight.

The Habitual Player

He sat at the table with the indifferent look of the habitual player upon his cleanly chiselled face. But it was plain that his good fortune stayed at his elbow tonight, for opposite to him the croupier was arranging with extraordinary deftness piles of bank notes in the order of their value. The bank was winning heavily. Even as Ricardo looked Wethermill turned up "a natural," and the croupier swept in the stakes from either side.

"Faites vos jeux, messieurs. Le jeu est fait?" the croupier cried, all in a breath, and repeated the words.

Wethermill waited with his hand upon the wooden frame in which the cards were stacked. He glanced round the table while the stakes were being laid upon the cloth, and suddenly his face flashed from languor into interest. Almost opposite to him a small, white-gloved hand holding a five-louis note was thrust forward between the shoulders of two men seated at the table.

Wethermill leaned forward and shook his head with a smile. With a gesture he refused the stake. But he was too late. The fingers of the hand had opened, the note fluttered down on to the cloth, the money was staked.

At once he leaned back in his chair.

"Il y aune suite," he said quietly. He relinquished the bank rather than play against the five-louis note. The stakes were taken up by their owners.

The croupier began to count Wethermill's winnings, and Ricardo, curious to know whose small, delicately gloved hand it was which had brought the game to so abrupt a termination, leaned forward. He recognized the young girl in the white satin dress and the big black hat whose nerves had got the better of her a few minutes since in the garden.

He saw her now clearly, and thought her of an entrancing loveliness. She was moderately tall, fair of skin, with a fresh coloring upon her cheeks which she owed to nothing but her youth. Her hair was of a light brown with a sheen upon it, her forehead broad, her eyes dark and wonderfully clear. But there was something more than her beauty to attract him. He had a strong belief that somewhere, some while ago he had already seen her, and this belief grew and haunted him. He was still vaguely puzzling his brains to fix the place when the croupier finished his reckoning.

"Who Will Take the Bank"

"There are two thousand louis in the bank," he cried. "Why will take on the bank for two thousand louis?"

No one, however, was willing. A fresh bank was put up for sale, and Wethermill, still sitting in the dealer's chair, bought it. He spoke at once to an attendant, and the man slipped round the table and, forcing his way through the crowd, carried a message to the girl in the black hat.

She looked toward Wethermill and smiled; and the smile made her face a miracle of tenderness. Then she disappeared, and in a few moments Ricardo saw a way open in the throng behind the banker, and she disappeared again only a yard or two away, just behind Wethermill. He turned and, taking her hand in his, shook it chidingly.

"I couldn't let you play against me, Celia," he said, in English; "my luck's too good to-night. So you shall be my partner instead. I'll put in the capital and we'll share the winnings."

"We're Partners."

The girl's face flushed rosily. Her hand still lay clasped in his. She made no effort to withdraw it.

"I couldn't do that!" she exclaimed.

"Why not?" said he. "See!" And loosening her fingers he took from them the five-louis note and tossed it over to the croupier to be added to his bank. "Now you can't help yourself. We're partners."

The girl laughed, and the company at the table smiled, half in sympathy, half with amusement.

A chair was brought for her, and she sat down behind Wethermill, her lips parted, her face joyous with excitement. But all at once Wethermill's luck deserted him. He renewed his bank three times, and had lost the greater part of his winnings when he had dealt the cards through. He took a fourth bank, and rose from that, too, a loser.

"That's enough, Celia," he said. "Let's go out into the garden; it will be cooler there."

"I have taken your good luck away," said the girl, remorsefully. Wethermill put his arm through hers.

"You'll have to take yourself away before you can do that," he answered, and the couple walked together out of Ricardo's hearing.

A Dweller in Bohemia

Ricardo was left to wonder about Celia. She was just one of those problems which made Aix-les-Bains so unfailingly attractive to him. She dwelt in some street of Bohemia; so much was clear.

The frankness of her pleasure, of her excitement, and even of her distress, proved it. She passed from one to the other while you could deal a pack of cards. She was at no pains to wear a mask. Moreover, she was a young girl of nineteen or twenty, running about those rooms alone, as unembarrassed as if she had been at home.

There was the free use, too, of Christian names. Certainly she dwelt in Bohemia. But it seemed to Ricardo that she could pass in any company and yet not be overpassed. She would look a little more picturesque than most girls of her age, and she was certainly a good deal more soignee than many, and she had the Frenchwoman's knack of putting on her clothes. But those would be all the differences, leaving out the frankness.

Ricardo Wonders

Ricardo wondered in what street of Bohemia she dwelt. He wondered still more when he saw her again half an hour afterwards at the entrance to the Villa des Fleurs. She came down the long hall with Harry Wethermill at her side. The couple were walking slowly, and talking as they walked with so complete an absorption in each other that they were unaware of their surroundings.

At the bottom of the steps a stout woman of fifty-five, over-jewelled, and over-dressed and raddled with paint, watched their approach with a smile of good-humored amusement. When they came near enough to her she said in French:

"Well, Celie, are you ready to go home?"

The girl looked up with a start.

"Of course, madame," she said, with a certain submissiveness which surprised Ricardo. "I hope I have not kept you waiting."

She ran to the cloak-room, and came back again with her cloak.

"Goodby, Harry," she said, dwelling upon his name and looking out upon him with soft and smiling eyes.

"I shall see you to-morrow evening," he said, holding her hand. Again she let it stay within his keeping, but she frowned, and a sudden gravity settled like a cloud upon her face. She turned to the elder woman with a sort of appeal.

To Be Continued.

Helping Hubby

By DOROTHY DIX

"EVERY woman who is a woman, and not a sawdust stuffed, dressed up doll, yearns, above everything else, to be of some real assistance to her husband," said the woman in sage green, "but there is no other problem on earth so great as how to do it. Beside the question of how to help your husband, the riddle of the Sphynx becomes a conundrum so simple that a child can guess it."

"Righto," assented the woman in the blue marquisette, "you can't do your duty by your husband without spoiling him."

"None of us like the people to whom we are under obligations," said the woman with the picture hat, and the minute a husband knows he should be grateful to his wife, he begins to hate her. Did you ever see a poor, patient, self-sacrificing wife who worked her fingers to the bone to help her husband, who wasn't neglected and mistreated?

The Sad Story of Alice

"I have just been thinking," said the woman in sage green, "about a cropper that some friends of mine have just come that shows what a difficult matter it is for a woman to help her husband, and how her very zeal to do the best for him may be her own undoing. My friend's name is Alice, and she is a remarkably pretty, intelligent and attractive woman in every way, and she is brimful of energy and ambition. Some ten years ago she fell in love with a very ordinary young fellow and married him.

"He was a poor young lawyer of very mediocre ability and of easy going, slothful, unaspiring disposition. He came of very plain people, and lacked polish and the manners of the great world. None of us could imagine what Alice saw in him to fancy, but she was simply daffy over him, and, from the very hour of the wedding she has bent every energy of her mind and body toward helping him.

"She has helped him study up his law cases; she has made clients for him; she has stimulated him and stood behind him, pushing him on. She has scrimped and economized that he might be elegantly dressed. She has made him a beautiful home. She has done everything for him that a woman can possibly do for a man, and has literally lifted him into success. You wouldn't know him to-day for the man she married.

"And the reward of all this devotion is that last week he told her brutally that he was tired of her, and that he had fallen in love with a younger woman, and that he wanted her to go to Reno to get a divorce so that he could marry this other woman. Poor Alice is broken hearted. When she told me about it she kept moaning over and over again, 'I can't understand it, for I tried so hard to help him,' and I didn't have the courage to tell her that that was just the trouble.

She Became a Task Mistress

"In trying to help him she had set a pace at which his lazy, pleasure-loving nature rebelled. She had come to seem to him like a task mistress, and so he turned from her to a woman who wouldn't urge him on to the struggle, or hold him up to any standard, and so the wife who had given the best that was in her to building him up gets discarded for her pains."

"Yet we want to help our husbands," repeated the woman in sage green. "How are we to do it without driving them from us?"

"I sometimes think," said the woman in blue," that the only way to help a man is to be a hindrance, and that the heavier she strengthens him. That is paradoxical, but it seems to work out satisfactorily in life. If you will notice, you will see that the women who have to have money always have husbands who make it, while the women who can do without things never have them.

When the Lazy Husband Quits

"Let a woman show that she can support herself, and her husband sits down and lets her do it, whereas the woman who can't even keep house decently has a husband who gets up and hustles."

"It's a discouraging fact," agreed the woman in the sage green, "that the less account, the more babyish and spoiled a woman is, the better her husband loves her."

"I think I have solved the problem," said the woman in the picture hat, "for I married a poor young man who has achieved success, and I have helped him to it; but I have done it so quietly that he does not know that I had any hand in it, so he loves me still."

"And what is your recipe, Oh, wisest of your sex?" asked the other two women.

"The way for a wife to help her husband," said the woman in the picture hat, "is to believe in him, feed him and to expect much of him.

"I have made my husband feel that I thought he was the most gifted creature of the age, and that there was nothing from being President down, that he could not achieve, if he so desired. Then I have made him a comfortable home in which he found peace and rest. I have built up his body for the fight, just as an engineer stokes his furnace for a big run.

"Finally, I have held the idea of success unwaveringly before my husband's eyes. He knows that I expect him to achieve it, and that if he doesn't I shall consider him a coward and a quitter. I don't stint my praise, and, believe me, the most intoxicating brand of flattery is home made, though women haven't always wit enough to know it."

"Well," said the woman in blue, "trying to help your husband is like fooling with dynamite. It may elevate you into Heaven, or blow you into the other place."

How Ben Scattered Sunshine

By KENNETT HARRIS

"THAT'S the way it is ever' time," complained the storekeeper. "I done trusted that snake in the grass for groceries when he didn't have no money—kep' him an' his fam'ly alive, b'Jinks!—an' as soon as he's able to pay cash, he goes over an' buys a bill of goods from Jim Allen, becus Jim made him think he c'd get what he wanted a few cents cheaper."

"Ain't it sick'nin'!" said Eben Baxter, sympathetically, as he nudged Hancock, and grinned aside.

"I reckon Jim made him b'lieve that by lowerin' the prices on him on' givin' him full weight," commented Old Man Somarindyk.

"Wait tills the next feller comes along, makin' a poor mouth an' wantin' me to c'yar' him over till harvest," threatened the storekeeper.

"I wouldn't blame you," declared Washington Hancock. "Seems like you'd be as much jestified as Ben Sniveley was when he got it in the neck right an' left from folks he'd befriended.

"What did he do?" asked the storekeeper.

"He jest nacherly quit doin' favors," Hancock replied. "Shet right down. He was plum disgusted with human nature an' he made up his mind 'at, from that on, he'd do business on business princerples."

"That's me," said the storekeeper, emphatically.

Never Was a Meaner Cuss.

"It was all the worse becus Ben was right ornery in the beginnin'," concluded Hancock. "I doubt if ever there was a meaner cuss stepped than what he was, from the time he c'd lay on his little back an' holler out loud.

"At school he'd steal an' lie an' tell on the other fellers, an' hawg anythin' he got that was good, until there wasn't skassly one of use ud speak to him exceptin' to roast him; an' the older he got the wuss he got. He never missed a chanct to do a dirty trick, an' he was most gin'rally too slick to git ketched.

"Finerly Uncle Isaac Tolson got after him an' done gave him a right good, fatherly talkin' to. Uncle Isaac had a fool idee that there was soft spots in ever' buddy's heart, if a feller knowed where to find 'em. He allowed Ben had his, too, but folks had been so hard on him they'd got a mite calloused over. Anyway, he got after Ben.

"'The trouble with you, Ben,' he says, 'is that you've got in the habit of lookin' on folks as your enemies 'stid of your friends. You hain't a performin' no kine actions, nor scatterin' no sunshine as you go. You think too much of the almighty dollar an' too little of your immortal soul. Look at me. Ever' time I see anythin' walkin' on two laigs, I says to myse'f, "Here's a friend o' mine," I says.'

"'That's all right for you,' says Ben. 'They hain't down on you like they are on me. Ever' time I see anybuddy comin' along, I say to myse'f, "Here's a person 'at would be tickled plum to death to get his knife into my short ribs, up to the handle, an' then give it a twist," I'm right, too.'

Scattering Sunshine

"'Then do good deeds, doggone you!' says Uncle Isaac. 'Scatter sunshine, you skeezicks!'

"'All right, I will,' says Ben. 'Blame if I don't try it.'

"So Ben goes to work on kine actions, the very best he knowed how. He done extended the time on a mortgage he'd got on a pore widder's farm—stid o' foreclosin' as he could have—an' he gave a neighbor of his two bushel of seed pertaters that he couldn't use himse'f or sell, but which he might have fed to his hawgs without much risk, considerin' that they wasn't sp'iled so turrible.

"Also, he took in a pore wayfarer that was starvin' an' homeless an' had been in jail, an' he done fed that pore feller an' clothed him an' even furnished him with terbacker.

"B'sides that, he gave a young orphan gal a sack o' mixed candy, an' contributed a dollar tords the preacher's salary. There was quite a passle of other things he done an' a heap of ornery things he might have done that he didn't do, but do you reckon he got any thanks? No, sir-ee."

"No, sir-ee," echoed the storekeeper.

"First thing you know, the widder had him arrested for vil'atin.' the usury law; an' it cost him over a year's intrust in lawyer fees," said Hancock. "Then the neighbor, he'd done give the seed to, charged him a dollar a day for he'pin' him out thrashin'. Right on top o' that, the feller he'd be'n bo'din' an' lodgin' free, up an said he wouldn't work no longer less'n he was paid wages; an' the gal he'd give the candy to, which was an orphan with a right smart o' property, she done married another feller, an' to crown all, the preacher whose salary he'd done paid—or part of it, anyway—that preacher got right up in meetin' an' denounced Ben up hill an' down dale. He didn't mention no names, but ever'buddy knowed he meant Ben, an' Ben himse'f knowed it.

"That Settles It," Said Ben

"'That settles it with me,' said Ben. "From this out, I'm a-goin' to look out for Benjamin P. Sniveley. I'm through with comfortin' the widder an' orphan, an' lovin' my taterless neighbor as myse'f. The homeless an' the necked kin go necked for all o' me. If the town constable kin stand it, I kin. I ain't a-goin' to s'pote a passle o' lazy preachers in idleness, nuther. I'm a-goin' to do business on business princerples.'"

"'That's the way it is ever' time,'" grinned Eben Baxter. "Si Gordon says Rufe, here, charged him two prices for ever' dern thing he got an' shoved off all the ol' shop-worn an' rotten stuff he had in the store on him jest becus he was broke."

"It's a blame lie," said the storekeeper.

DOESN'T HE KNOW THAT THE RESERVOIR IS ON TOP OF THIS HILL?
THE WATER IS NICE AND DEEP AND CLAUDE AND HIS ROSAMOND WILL DROWN. MY REVENGE IS COMPLETE HA, HA, HA, HA!
I CAN SWIM, BUT I MUST UNHITCH THE HORSE OR HE WILL DROWN SURE!
OATS
EASIER TO MOUNT THE HORSE NOW
THESE SHAFTS SAVE US AND TIP THE CAB AS WELL. NOW YOU DIE, YOU CUR!
CURSES! I'M FOILED
OATS

Claude and Rosamond fondly imagine that they have nothing to fear except that the cabman may possibly charge them six times the legal rate for their trip in the hansom. Little do they know that the regular cabby has resigned his job in favor of Desperate Desmond. He didn't want to resign, but Desmond persuaded him.

When you are in a hansom cab, you are at the mercy of the driver. He can take you wherever he wants to. If he takes you to the place you ordered him to go, it's only because he can make more money that way. But when a crook like Desperate Desmond is driving, you can never tell where you are going to land.

With fiendish ingenuity, the villain has picked out the very worst place for miles around. He has driven the cab into the waterworks reservoir, and the lovers are submerged beneath the waves, while he himself sits high and dry upon the driver's seat. He doesn't care if he does get his feet wet, so long as he gets his revenge.

Claude and Rosamond can easily swim out, but the poor horse is harnessed to the cab and must drown if somebody doesn't unhitch him. Our noble hero cannot bear to see a poor dumb animal made the innocent victim of Desmond's villainy, so he unfastens the harness and lets the beast go. True heroes are always kind to animals.

Now that the horse is safe, a sudden thought strikes Claude. He will tip the hansom up and give Desmond a taste of his own medicine. It would serve the cur right if he could be made to fill the watery grave he destined for our brave hero and our handsome heroine. But, somehow, we have a hunch that the cur will escape.

As the cab tips backward, Claude and Rosamond cling to the shafts and are lifted above the surface of the water. Claude had presence of mind enough to grab a bag of oats, and, when the horse comes around for his oats, he'll have to help the lovers ashore. As for Desmond, see the pictures in Monday's papers.

Distances

OH, the blue distances,
Beckoning, luring,
In the slow twilight
Of whisper and dream—
Calling me, calling,
So that I follow
Into the silence,
Into the dusk.

Here, while the Winter
Falters and lingers,
Cometh the promise,
The impulse, the vision,
Drawing my footsteps
Down the old roadway
To the dear haunts
Where the violets are waiting.

All the bewitchments
Of past and of future
Blend in the blueness
That draws and consoles me;
So that I pass
In a dream from the city,
Down the old roadway
Into the nightfall,
Forth to the mystical
Hope that allures me,
To the blue distances
Beckoning, calling.

If You Meant It

YOU observed you were so glad to see me,
You were grieved when I went;
Any king would be tickled to be me,
If you said what you meant.
You opined Mr. Tompkins was silly,
And you thought that his hair was too red,
I'm not quite so scared of friend Billy,
If you meant what you said.

You declared that poor men were delightful,
Those who hadn't a cent;
I'd confess that my poverty's frightful,
If you said what you meant.
You remarked that you thought me quite clever,
With a talent for getting ahead,
Well, I know I'll try harder than ever
If you meant what you said.

You said more, I am bound to remind you,
That you'll never repent;
I intend to take measures to bind you,
If you said what you meant.
On the subject no longer I'll linger,
But I'm good for the butter and bread,
And—this ring will look well on your finger,
If you meant what you said.

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Continued)

"FATHER!" he protested, smiling, "you take this too seriously!"

"No, I don't!" cried the old man, brokenly. "I—you're my own flesh and blood, and I can't—I can't see you go to prison! You shan't—you shan't!" And he clung to him desperately.

Young Emerson took his father into his arms, laughing softly, but uncertainly, his eyes winking to keep back the tears.

"Now, please, father! Please! Please." And gently disengaging the clinging arms he sprang into his room and shut and locked the door. The old man stood for a few moments, crushed and stunned, his head bowed. Then without a word to the others he raised his head, threw back his shoulders and walked steadily from the room.

Cowper's Self-Contempt

There was a general sigh of relief as the door closed on the old gentleman and then Cowper broke forth in an agony of self-contempt.

"Oh! If I were only built like Wilbur Emerson!" he groaned. "Nothing seems to feaze him! It doesn't seem possible that one man can be so much different from another! He's a man—a man! And I'm a—a—and you're not much better—either of you!"

"What's the matter, old man?" asked Tooker, gently. "Losing your nerve?"

"Never had any!" groaned Cowper with a half sob. "But I'm sorry! God! I'm sorry! I'd give my life to get them back!"

"Get them back?" echoed Tooker, in astonished.

"Our notes—that d—— affidavit!"

"You're maudlin!" snapped Raymond, as Tooker stared at the shaken man with a gleam of rage and understanding in his eyes.

"Yes, maudlin!" went on Cowper. "That's it—maudlin. The hell I've lived through in this week's enough to make any one—maudlin!"

Before Tooker could frame a few pointed questions that he wished to ask, Isabel ran into the room. She was obviously excited.

"How do you do, Mr. Tooker—Mr. Raymond?" she exclaimed breathlessly, bowing to Cowper. "Is my brother Wilbur here?"

"He's—he's in his room," replied Cowper.

She ran to the door and knocked.

"Some one to see you. Wilbur!—Wilbur!" she called, rattling the knob. "Open the door!"

"Out in five minutes!" came a cheery voice from within.

"Five minutes!" murmured his sister. Thomas appeared at the hall door.

"Breakfast is served for Mr. Wilbur, miss," he said.

"Thank you. Father told me we are to have the pleasure of your company," she went on, turning to the gentlemen, "so—we expect you."

"Thanks," bowed Tooker. "I shall be very glad to join you."

"I just want a little coffee," said Raymond, ungraciously. "I've had no breakfast."

"I'll be with you in just a moment," she went on with unmistakable meaning. "I want to speak to Wilbur."

Tooker took the hint at once.

"Come along," he said to the others, and walked out followed by Raymond. Cowper alone sat unmoved.

"Mr. Cowper—won't you—join them?" suggested Miss Isabel, nervously.

"No, thanks," he replied without raising his head. He was too deep in his own misery to notice her excitement and annoyance. Isabel, with a shrug, turned to the door.

"Wilbur! Wilbur!" There was no response. "It's Kate Darwin," she called desperately. "She wants to see you on a most important matter."

At the sound of the name Cowper sprang up and hurried to the door beside her.

"Mrs. Darwin? Mrs. James Darwin?" he questioned eagerly. "I'll get him!"

He called and shook the door until it was opened by an invisible hand and he slipped into the room, closing the door quickly behind him. Isabel turned back to the centre of the room just as Catherine Darwin, in hat and muff, hastened in.

Where is your brother, Bella?" she demanded.

CHAPTER XX.

Burning the Bridges

CATHERINE DARWIN'S lovely face was pale and there were faint dark shadows under her eyes when she hurried into the room, but she was apparently calm and self-possessed.

"My husband followed me," she explained to Isabel. "I hear his voice in the hall asking for me. I don't want to see him, and I scarcely need to tell you that I have no desire—that I never want to see him again!" She paused for a moment and pressed her lips together.

"He's going to bring suit for divorce," she added.

"Divorce!" echoed Isabel. "Is it as bad as that?"

'As bad! It couldn't be better!" she exclaimed, with a bitter little laugh. "If he only keeps his word—and I'm half afraid he won't. Where's your brother?"

"Is—is Wilbur the—the cause?" asked her friend with visible embarassment.

"The excuse—not the cause," was the calm reply. "It's most important that I should see him alone!" she went on hurriedly. "Where is he?"

"He'll be here in a moment," replied Isabel, wonderingly. "Mr. Cowper has gone for him."

"Cowper!" echoed Catherine, thoughtfully. "That's the name of the man that left"—she produced the letter—"this communication for Mr. Darwin." Isabel shook her head.

"I don't know."

"I heard him ask the girl if Mr. Cowper had left a package for him," continued Catherine. "Oh, Isabel, I'm distracted—distracted! I don't know what to do!" she cried, wringing her hands. "I don't know what I ought to do! This is for Mr. Darwin, but I—I——"

She shook her head and dropped into a chair at the table. Isabel sat down opposite and regarded her friend with puzzled eyes.

"Is it his?" she inquired.

"It is addressed to him," returned Catherine, with emphasis that made a difference. "It will enable him to send a number of men to prison. I don't want him to have it! I want to give it to—to some one else."

"But if it is addressed to Mr. Darwin!" protested Isabel, gently. "How can you, Catherine, how can you?"

"I don't know!" cried the other, distractedly. "But that's what I'm going to do! It's the first wrong I've ever done my husband! The first!—the very first!"

"You will justify his conduct to you, Kate. Ah, don't do that!" pleaded her chum, earnestly. There was a silence of several moments, and then Catherine said, softly:

"I think if you knew—you wouldn't be quite so anxious. Has your brother told you nothing?"

"Friends of Wilbur?"

"No," replied Isabel, a gleam of anxiety in her eyes. "Why, is it connected with Wilbur? Friends of his, perhaps?"

"Yes—friends of his," said Catherine hurriedly, looking away. But Isabel shook her head. She had uncompromising ideals.

"Still, right is right," she declared. "No argument can alter that!"

Her friend rose slowly, walked around the table and stood beside the young woman's chair, looking down at her in love and pity.

"You can argue against truth itself, if it strikes at your own door," she said, gently. "Supposing it were your father and brother that Mr. Darwin was so anxious to send to prison—would you give it to him then?"

"It wouldn't alter the fact that it was right to do it," replied Isabel, shaking her head.

"Then you would deliberately send them to prison without making an effort to save them? Would you send them to prison? Answer me that!"

"Right is right!" insisted the other. Catherine heaved a deep sigh.

"Yes—when you are deciding for others," she said, "But when you decide for yourself—for your father—youh brother—it's different! Your father's an old man, Isabel," she went on, softly. "All his life has been devoted to the good of others."—

Something in the voice made Isabel look up at her suddenly with startled, frightened eyes.

"My father!" she whispered. Catherine slowly nodded. Isabel siezed her hand in both of her own, pressed it convulsively to her cheek and crumpled it over the table.

"Your brother led him into some big speculation that ended disastrously," went on her friend in the same gentle tones. "Shall we send them to prison? Shall we?"

"My brother!—My father!" choked Isabel, not daring to look up. "You don't really—mean that! Oh, Kate, Kate!"

"Yes." The only sign from the girl was a long shuddering sob.

"It's true," went on her friend gently. "Wilbur came to my house last night to—get them. My husband found him there—and accused me. It will save his father from prison, he says. So I kept it from Mr. Darwin—and—now—right or wrong—I tend to keep it from him!"

"God bless you, Kate!" sobbed the girl. "You're very good—to us! Very—good—to us!"

Catherine's other arm was around her neck in a moment and her lips to her ear, whispering hope and comfort. They were in this attitude when a cold voice from the hall door interrupted them.

"I ask your pardon, Miss Emerson, for interrupting what seems to be a very interesting conversation, but I wish to speak to Mrs. Darwin."

Culture and Sunshine

By THOMAS TAPPER

"The sun shines free for everybody, Mawrus, except the feller in the raincoat business."—MONTAGUE GLASS.

I.

THE body is the symbol of a man's thought.

This has been said many times and in many ways, the most famous of which is: "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

The divine command, taking precedence over all others, is: Create.

If a man is too indolent to be active, if he prefers to sit in his raincoat, rather than let the sun shine on him with its abounding vitality, he still goes on creating his body, which forever is the material symbol of his thought.

As thought builds everything, a man is wise who takes some pains with his thinking process.

Now there is Culture.

Culture is supposed to give a man a boost by permitting him to talk about books, and art, and the refinements of life.

TWO PAGES OF HATS—The latest things from Paris described and pictured for you. Don't miss this wonderful fashion feature of the Sunday AMERICAN.

But Culture, to be the real thing, must have a background, or a basis; that is, it must come from something. Culture is not a cause. It is an effect.

A farmer who talks about the cultivation of his fields, in terms of corn, wheat, oats and green groceries, knows that these results come from a cause, or from a series of closely allied causes, called: ploughing, harrowing, deep digging, dirt on the hands, dirt all over him every day, then careful sowing, and, finally, the reaping. But no reaping without all that goes before.

Culture and a Farmer?

What does the dictionary say?

Latin cultura from colere, to till, to cultivate.

II.

SO mental culture is likewise a result and not a cause. But decidedly it is not general information, or club-papers, or any other form of what Charles Lamb called "superficial omniscience." Corn, wheat, oats and green groceries often grow along the railway tracks where the seed has been dropped in the shipping. But no one harvests them.

True mental culture is ploughing, harrowing, deep digging, dirt on the hands, dirt all over one, then careful sowing, and, finally, the reaping.

In other words, culture comes from a fair and honest belief, such as this:

Believe you can conquer the world by right thinking. You can.

Concentrate on what you desire to become. You can accomplish it.

Make that desire worthy of any hero in history. You will become one.

Drop forever fear, worry, anxiety and hatred.

Go into the business of life with faith and tolerance.

III.

WHEN Emerson said: "A man is a god in disguise," he meant a man, but not any of the odds and ends of humanity in the shape of a man.

The real thing, in the man class, is progressive. He knows the worst evil that can befall him is arrested development, so he keeps out of park benches, and saloons, and treetops, and thinks in the sunshine.

He is an Alexander the Great to the world about him, and he never lets up. His thought creates and his creations look good to other men.

His mind is active, hence serene. His body is fair, for it is not a garbage barrel. And when he speaks, his words are the fruit, and flower, and grain of a plowed and tilled domain.

And people call him cultured.

BE BEAUTIFUL—No patent devices or acid lotions. Just read what Mme. Lina Cavalieri will say in the Sunday AMERICAN.

THE aroma that greets you when you break the seal of a canister of Chase & Sanborn's tea is the pure fragrance of the tea leaf as it grows in its native garden, unchanged by moisture, uncrushed, and free from even its own dust.

When the boiling water uncurls and softens it you realize what a perfect cup of tea is.

HAMMOND SEES FIELD IN RUSSIA

John Hays Hammond, who went to Russia two months ago to investigate conditions from the point of view of an American business man, has arrived at New York, accompanied by Mrs. Hammond and their son John Hays Hammond, Jr. He said that there existed ample opportunity for the investment of American capital in the Czar's dominions. He had an interview with the Czar.

"The result of my visit to Russia," Mr. Hammond said, "confirmed my conclusions resulting from my trip there ten years ago. Russia offers an exceptional field for American capital and for the introduction of American initiative and experience. The country has unlimited and varied natural resources. This statement will be a revelation to those unacquainted with actual conditions in Russia. The peasants are uneducated, but education can be provided, whereas intelligence is innate. This is an important point in the economic development of a country.

"Americans will be welcomed in Russia. All is not gold that glitters, in Russia as well as elsewhere, and discrimination must be exercised before investments are made. Before many years Russia will be a large importer, and it will repay Americans to study the opportunities there."

Mr. Hammond said that he found the Czar very approachable and democratic. The Czar, he said, requested that the interview be as between man and man, rather than between man and monarch.

"We conversed in English," Mr. Hammond said, "and as I left he turned to a minister who had been with us during the interview and remarked that he had enjoyed our talk together."

BUTTER MAN CHEATED IN A NEW SWINDLE

William Barber, a grocer of No. 28 Andrews street, Cambridgeport, will hereafter be more thorough in his sampling of bargains in butter offered to him.

Three men drove up to his store and informed Mr. Barber they had a bargain in tub butter to offer him. Butter at ten cents a pound appealed to the grocer, and he proceeded to sample the contents of one of the five fifty-pound tubs in the wagon. It tasted good, and Barber closed the bargain, taking the five tubs at $10 a tub. He only had $34 in cash, and offered the men his check for $16 to make up the balance. The men told him his credit was good, and that he needn't worry about paying the balance. They would call again.

When he opened the tub from which the sample was taken, he discovered that most of the contents consisted of loam. The other tubs were all loam.

CATTLEMAN ON SHIP DEAD IN EXPLOSION

Robert Armstrong, a cattleman on the steamship Cestrian, which arrived from Liverpool, was scalded to death while at sea through the bursting of an exhaust pipe upon which he had just hung a shirt he had washed. He died in five minutes after the explosion and was buried at sea. Armstrong, who was born in Ireland forty-two years ago, shipped on the Canadian in New York on January 8.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STEEL AND U. P. LEAD MARKET

STATE STREET, Feb. 4.—Closing. After an active morning's trading, in which substantial gains were recorded, the market closed buoyant with Steel and Union Pacific each showing a rise of 1⅞ points. Reading gained 1½ and Missouri Pacific 1⅝ points.

The bulk of the buying came from traders who were covering shorts and when any demand for stock appeared prices were easily advanced. Although much of this strength was attributed to manipulation, it was well maintained throughout the session.

There were many floor tips to sell the leading issues, but any attempt by traders to do so resulted only in renewed spurts of bullish activity.

Rumors that an important statement would soon be made with reference to ownership of Missouri Pacific found little credence, though the bulls used it to good advantage. Denver and other Gould issues advanced in sympathy. Little attention was paid to the statement of New York Central for December, as it is assumed that conditions will soon be materially changed from decrease net earnings.

On the local market the closing was strong with the copper quiet and most of the trading in the miscellaneous list. In the industrial list United Fruit on small sales gained ⅝, and American Telephone and Western Telephone common were firm. It is generally understood that the recent strength in the latter issue is the result of investment buying, although the fact that the company has expended liberally for maintenance, thus placing the property in first-class condition, has probably been a material factor.

Weaver, John Booker, Jr., Albert E. Crane, Richard W. Hucker, Jr., Jacob S. Fortner, Gordon Le Afbvre, Chauncey C. Devore and Early W. Dunmore. LEOMINSTER'S FIRE IS INVESTIGATED

LEOMINSTER, Feb. 4.—Robert E. Molt of the State detective force and the local police began to-day an investigation into the $15,000 fire in the Jones block yesterday which imperilled several lives. Incendiarism is suspected. Firemen reported traces of kerosene when they were fighting the flames. Close examination of the fire-swept premises was made to-day and occupants of the building and others were questioned.

SEES APPENDIX REMOVED.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—Mother Superior Hildegraide, seventy-one, of Mercer Academy, saw surgeons remove her vermiform appendix. Cocaine was administered locally. The operation was successful.

MOTOR SHOW ENDS TO-NIGHT

Last call for the Motor Boat Show.

The 1911 exhibition of the New England Engine and Boat Association in Mechanics Building closes at 10:30 to-night.

The attendance to-day promised that the show would wind up in a busy whirl. Motor boat enthusiasts from all over the country, and especially from the East, were present. Heavy attendance has been the rule throughout the exhibition. This is gratifying to the association especially to its secretary, Chester I. Campbell, manager of the exhibition.

Mr. Campbell is particularly pleased with the large attendance of women. They are not alone showing interest in the elaborately appointed cruisers, but are doing their part in exploiting the little motor boats, that are so simple in engine and other appointments that a child may pilot them.

The show is, indeed, planned as an educational feature of the trade, a feature that would aid the general public in arriving at the opinion that a motor boat engine is as reliable as a motor in an automobile, and that "water autos" can be obtained so cheaply that there is practically no limit to the sphere of activity of the builder and salesman. That this is true is proven by the great number of people who are now purchasing. The trade is rapidly getting into channels parallel with those of the automobile. This means early orders for the coming season.

Among the advance orders are many for boats to be used in competition in the power boat races which are to be held in Boston Harbor on July 4 next. Builders and boat buyers are showing lively interest in this coming regatta, for which splendid trophies will be offered. The New England Engine and Boat Association has already offered a valuable trophy for the Class A event.

What Animal Controls Your Spirit?

Our Good and Our Bad Qualities Are Mapped Out in Our Humble Animal Relations

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

Of all animals upon earth man came last.

All of earth's animal creations are bound up in man.

As to the first statement there is no difference of opinion.

The Bible and Darwin agree that man was created last of all the animals.

Very superficial observation will convince you that man contains in his mental make-up all of the "inferior" animals, or at least a great many of them.

You, Mr. Jones, or Smith, who read this are in your single self a sort of synthesis of the entire animal creation.

If you could be divided into your component animal parts there would be a menagerie in your house, and you, Smith or Jones, would be missing. That thing we call a "soul" would be floating around, impalpable, looking for its house to live in.

Of course, you can see the animal make-up in your neighbor more readily than in yourself.

How do men describe each other? Do they not speak as follows, and mean exactly what they say?

"He is as sly as a fox."

"He eats like a pig."

"He has dog-like faithfulness."

"He is as brave as a lion."

"He is as treacherous as a snake."

"He was as hungry as a wolf," etc.

Our good and bad qualities alike are mapped out in our humble animal relations.

The horse stands for ambition, which strives and suffers in silence. The dog represents friendship, which suffers and sacrifices much, but whines loudly when injured.

We have no doubt that of the twelve passions which enter into Fourier's complex analysis of man each has its prototype in some one animal.

To rebel at the animal combination which makes up a man would be folly.

The Maker of us all, from ants to anti-imperialists, naturally gathered together the various parts in lower animal form before finishing the work in man.

A harmoniously balanced mixture of all the animals is calculated undoubtedly to produce the perfect man.

Therefore, study your animal make-up. Analyze honestly and intelligently the so-called "lower" creatures from whom you derive your mental characteristics. If you have not yet done so, study at once some good work on embryology, and learn with amazement and awe of your marvelous transformations before birth.

Then do your best to control the menagerie that is at work in your mind.

Stultify Mr. Pig, if he is too prominent. Circumvent Mr. Fox, if he tries to rule you and make of you a mere cunning machine. Do not let your Old Dog Tray qualities of friendship lead to your being made a fool.

In short, study carefully the animal qualities that make up your temperament and prove in your own person the falseness of Napoleon's irritating statement that a man's temperament can never be changed by himself.

It may interest you to note that when man becomes insane the fact is at once made apparent that his mind, dethroned, had acted as the ruler of a savage menagerie. Many crazy men imagine themselves animals of one sort or another. Nearly all of them display the grossest animal qualities, once their mind is deranged. Women of the greatest refinement sink into dreadful animalism when insane. Heine tells of a constable who, in his boyhood, ruled his native city. One fine day "this constable suddenly went crazy, * * * and thereupon he began to roar like a lion or squall like a cat."

Heine remarks with calculated naivete: "We little boys were greatly delighted at the old fellow, and trooped, yelling, after him until he was carried off to a madhouse."

There is, by the way, much of the natural animal in "little boys." It takes years to make a fairly reasonable creature of a young human. For that reason many ignorant parents are foolishly distressed at juvenile displays of animalism, which are perfectly natural.

The same Heine, whose writings you ought not to neglect, describes beautifully a human menagerie. We'll quote that, and then let you off for the day. Heine was living in Paris in the forties, and used to visit a curious revolutionary freak named Ludwig Borne. Of this man's house Heine wrote:

"I found in his salon such a menagerie of people as can hardly be found in the Jardin des Plantes (the Paris zoological garden). In the background several polar bears were crouching, who smoked and hardly ever spoke, except to growl out now and then a real fatherland 'Donnerwetter' in a deep bass voice. Near them was squatted a Polish wolf in a red cap, who occasionally yelped out a silly, wild remark in a hoarse tone. There, too, I found a French monkey, one of the most hideous creatures I ever saw; he kept up a series of grimaces, each of which seemed more lovely than the last," etc.

If Heine's polar bears, wolf and monkey had studied themselves, as we advise you to study yourself, they might have escaped the sarcasm of the sharpest tongue ever born in or out of Germany.

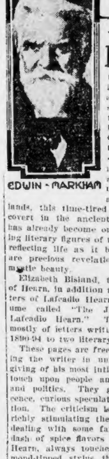
EDITED BY EDWIN MARKHAM



EDWIN - MARKHAM

John Vance Cheney and Roswell Field, Associate Editors

It was Edmund Clarence Stedman who said that Lafcadio Hearn is destined to have as romantic a personality and tradition as Edgar Allan Poe. Indeed, this Greek-Celt whose tremulously sensitive spirit, through inheritance and travel and literature, was touched by the magic and mystery of many lands, this time-tired Westerner seeking covert in the ancient calm of the East, has already become one of the most alluring literary figures of the age. His books, reflecting life as it broke upon his soul, are precious revelations of weird and mystic beauty.

Elizabeth Bisland, the literary executor of Hearn, in addition to her "Life and Letters of Lafcadio Hearn," now offers a volume called "The Japanese Letters of Lafcadio Hearn." The volume consists mostly of letters written from the East in 1890-94 to two literary friends in America.

These pages are free, flowing, fine, showing the writer in unpremeditated moods, giving of his most intimate thoughts. They touch upon people and places and books and politics. They give quaint reminiscence, curious speculation, learned disquisition. The criticism is fine and penetrant, richly stimulating the reader, even when dealing with some familiar subject, as a dash of spice flavors the plain dish. And Hearn, always touches ideas with a diamond-tipped stylus that graves and polishes the word, that gives light and shade and color to the rhythmic march of the sentence.

There are a thousand texts in the book that start the mind on strange new paths into the wonders of the world. He says prophetic things of Japan, of civilization. He makes profound observations upon men and literature.

One of Hearn's favorite thoughts is that man is not an individual at all, but an impermanent agglomeration of cells and ghosts of souls out of the past. We are each and all only compounds of anterior lives. He says:

"All our emotions and thoughts and wishes, however changing and growing through the varying seasons of life, are only compositions and recompositions of the sensations and ideas and desires of other folk, mostly of dead people. I am an individual—an individual soul? Nay, I am a population."

Yes, man is a population, but he is also an individual soul. Hearn seems to leave out of account the fact that there is something permanent in personality—something that remains fixed amid all that flies and fades—something in the centre of the flux and flow—something that says forever, "I am I." This is the essential man, the deep interior self, that looks out upon all the forms of chance and change, saying, "I am in them, but not of them—I am the changeless in the midst of the ever-changing."

Houghton Mifflin Company, Publishers, Boston, $3.00.

Le Gallienne Makes His Peace with Nature

A book of prose sketches, "October Vagabonds," is the record by Mr. Richard Le Gallienne of his return to the woods to be reconciled again with nature, the great mother whom he had long abandoned for the city and its clamors. Afar in the quiet of the hills, in a little hidden hut, Mr. Le Gallienne, a poet seeking to charm the silence and beauty into words, was joined by an artist-friend seeking to catch the spirit of the Autumn woods in color. It was an Arcadian enterprise that held artist and poet alone in the leafy stillness, an experiment highly "Thoreaubust" for men inured to skyscraper studios overhanging the gulches of the city streets.

The two stayed on until the Summer, the "green friend" went, leaving them in the ruining woods. Then, with the Autumn wind at their backs, they started one October morning to return to the great workaday Babylon that gives them bread. They chose to walk their four miles to New York in order to make the transition to bustle and dust and business less sudden and less distressing to their spirits, now sublimated by the airy mansions of the out-of-doors. That walk, as far as they went, was idyllic, with jay and squirrel chaffing them as they passed; with nuts and apples dropping along their way; with new horizons opening before them and with many friendly greetings along the road.

Then one of them fell ill, and this indignity of fate forced them to the shuttling and clanging train, and the pleasant adventure was over.

The illustrations, by Thomas Fogarty, add breezy, friendly comment to the story of the pilgrimage.

(Mitchell Kennerley, Publisher, New York. $1.50.)

Dramas by a Distinguished American Poet

For many years, Madison Cawein has been famed as an exquisite word painter of nature, as a poet whose magic pen has the art to dash upon the inner eye the color, the motion, the sound—the very life and light of a landscape. His accuracy combined with ideality in this sort of transcript has not been surpassed in any land at any time.

In "The Shadow Garden," Mr Cawein offers us four poetic dramas—a phantasy, a mystery, a miracle, a tragedy. Each is a work of charm and distinction, full of delicate detail that give the poet play for his bright imaginings and his delicate seeing.

"The Shadow Garden," which names the book, personifies flowers and grass and insects and wind and waters, among whom on a midsummer night move the soul of a child, the shadow of a dream, and the shadows of a man and woman long departed. Read this routing out of the drowsy bumblebee by the elves, who cry:

"Here's a bumblebee!
Gone dead asleep deep in this hollyhock!
There's comfort for you! Hear him how he snores.
Ho, there! What inn is this? What drink do y' sell?
A boozing den, forsooth, for lazy bees!
A right fair house, but needs good cleaning out.
Hey, ho, thou tippler, drunk with honeydew.
Out, out, thou burly braggart! Art thee host?
We'll ruin thy business! Look! he never moves * * *
Here, Batwing, tease him with a whip of web:
Imp-ride him now as nightmares ride digestion * * *
Well done! He doth protest? Out, out with him!
With all the goblin gold that weighs his thighs,
The sack of honey in his shaggy paunch.
This is no wayside tavern for fat bees."

A Bit of North America Little Known

Most persons have hazy ideas of Lower California and Southern California, often considering these two localities as identical. Be it known that Lower California is the peninsula, long and narrow and belonging to Mexico, a peninsula that hangs like a cat's tail to our California proper.

But hereafter there will be no need to look upon this strip of land as terra incognita, for in his "Camp and Camino in Lower California," Mr. Arthur North sets before us the place and its people with text and photographs that annex it unforgettably to the memory.

Mr. North has traversed the entire territory where Cortez attempted a settlement nearly a hundred years before Jamestown; and he recounts the scenes and conditions of to-day as set against the romantic background of the early missions and the picturesque invasion of General Walker, the filibuster, who planned to make a slave state of Senora and Baja California.

This is an instructive book of travel. Although it shows some careless writing, it gives information as fresh as though the scene were on some continent never before looked on with "wild surmise."

How American Cities Are Run

"Great Cities in America," by Delos F Wilcox, Ph. D., is a collection of monographs prepared originally to give to readers in Germany an idea of our American municipal governments. These articles have been revised for "The Citizen's Library of Economics, Politics and Sociology."

The book will instruct the citizen interested in clean politics, and especially the voter wishing to find the best forward step to promote civic decency and justice.

An Exciting Mystery

Gaston Leroux has outdone himself in his new book of mystery and adventure. "The Mystery of the Yellow Room" and "The Perfume of the Woman in Black" have gone through many editions in France, in England and in this country, but by all odds the most astonishing novel of any Leroux has yet written is "The Phantom of the Opera."

The scene itself is unique—the opera house in Paris—and the action embraces the whole building from the lyre of Apollo on the very top of its seventeen stories to the lake at the bottom of its five cellars. And it is all action—action and mystery piled on mystery until bewildered, fascinated, aye, even excited, one reads on unable to put down the book until the end is reached.

It is not a literary triumph, it was not meant to be, but it is a story of mystery just as its title suggests, and it is well told.

Books and Bookmen

With the close of 1911 the authorized version of the English Bible will have completed its third century. To commemorate the event a volume entitled, "Our Grand Old Bible," by Rev. William Muir, is soon to be issued. The book will give a complete history of the Bible from the inception of the work and will sketch the lives of its translators.

Edward Marston, known as "the father of English publishing," is eighty-seven years old and is about to publish his journal of night thoughts acquired, he says, during his wakeful hours in the night watches. He calls it "An Old Man's Nocturary."

M. Gaspard Valette in his new book has undertaken to prove that Rousseau was a Swiss and not a Frenchman, as is generally believed. More particularly, he endeavors to show that Rousseau was a citizen of Geneva, not only by early association, but in his ideas, tastes and prejudices.
